AFFAIRS AT WASHINGTON.

The Case of Mr. Sickles Before the Grand Jury.

Mexican Affairs—The Nicaraguan and the New-Granadian Treaties—Naval Inefficiency—The Detroit Postmaster, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, March 14.

The Grand Jury examined twelve witnesses in the Sickles case to-day, but it is a singular fact that Mr. Butterworth, who had testified before the examining Court, was neither examined nor subpœnaed as a witness before the Grand Jury. A bill will probably be returned to-morrow, and the trial set for Monday next. The counsel of Mr. Sickles desired to avoid any unnecessary examination of the case before the Grand Jury. It is not true that the friends of the late Mr. Key have employed counsel. The Judges oppose any such course as highly improper. Unless Government employs additional counsel, the probability is that none will be employed. Mr. Sickles is surrounded by New-Yorkers and others, and is in good spirits.

The Mexican Legation is without any information touching the rumored defeat of Miramon.

Gen. Jaurez is also without any news from Nicaragua, although it is believed that the Cass-Yrissari Treaty will be returned with one article only slightly modified.

The Cass Herran Treaty was so changed before ratification by the Senate, that it must again go before the New-Granadian Congress.

When the steamer Fulton reached Montevideo, it was discovered that she had her big gun, but that the gun-carriage had been left at Norfolk. Lieutenant Almy, Commanding, was one of the witnesses called to establish Captain Latimer's inefficiency.

A large delegation of Michigan Democrats is here, urging the removal of O'Flynn from the Detroit Post-office. Ex-Secretary McClelland heads the company, and is backed by Secretary Cass. The President says it is strange that the only appointment he has made in Michigan should be so obnoxious to the party. The question of removal is still pending, with the chances in favor of O'Flynn. WASHINGTON, Monday, March 14.

It is credibly ascertained that both England and France disclaim any other intention in sending naval forces to the coast of Mexico, than to procure due reparation for wrongs to British and French subjects. The further statement is made that it is not their purpose to take sides with or favor either of the contending Mexican Governments. There is reason to believe our Government is not apprehensive that anything will be done by them in conflict with the Monroe doctrine, or to shape the political institutions of that country.

Mr. Holt entered upon the discharge of his duties as Postmaster-General to-day. The Boston Committee had an interview with him, in reference to the removal of the Post-office, and he informed them he would consider the subject after hearing from Postmaster Capen.

General Denver left this afternoon for California. His resignation as Commissioner of Indian Affairs is to take effect on the 1st of April. Mr. Mix, Chief Clerk of the Bureau, has been commissioned as Acting Commissioner.

The Grand Jury to-day commenced the examination of witnesses in the Sickles case; twelve or fourteen have been summoned.

The last weekly Treasury statement up to the 7th inst. shows a balance in the Treasury of $7,188,000. The receipts of the week were $710,500. The drafts paid amounted to $732,000, and the drafts issued to $1,044,000—a reduction of $329,000 as compared with the previous week. The receipts in New-York for the week ending on Saturday last were $2,272,000, including $1,600,000 on account of the loan.

The Board, consisting of Chief Engineers Wood, Isherwood and Long, will convene at Philadelphia, on the 28th inst., for the examination of candidates for admission and promotion in the Engineer corps of the Navy.

Chief Clerk Shugert is now acting as Commissioner of Patents.

Mr. Florence, who has been ill ever since the close of Congress, is convalescent.

Ex-Congressman Joseph Miller, of Ohio, has been appointed Associate Justice for Nebraska, vice Saml. W. Black, resigned.

General Appearance of the Capital Since the Adjournment.

The Sickles Tragedy—Prospects of the Trial—Further Particulars of the Case—Changes in the Diplomatic Corps, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, March 8, 1859.

Two more dull and dreary days than the 7th and 8th of March have seldom fallen even on this chosen home of dullness and dreariness. The rain had not the spirit to come down boldly and have done with it, but sneaked down in a stealthy drizzle to the earth. Umbrella-sellers and hackmen opposite the Kirkwood leered triumphant. The old, dirty Georgetown omnibus drivers chuckled with a muddy joy, and carriages floundered like so many arks along the swamp, miscalled street, of Pennsylvania-avenue. As the darkness fell last night it looked just such a street as that into which the old man Lear was cast forth by the cruel Goneril. Along the black, dismal vista from the Executive mansion to the Capitol Hill damp figures flitted; the dust of weeks deepened steadily to a ditch down the midway of the road. Many a lovely mousseline that left Chicago or Philadelphia in the pride of youth and beauty will return humiliated and stained. The mud of Washington has no more heart than its men. It draggles the skirts of beauty with democratic insolence, and I saw it to-day splash its impertinent attentions all about the pathway of the lovely niece of a Senator from Connecticut, who still lingers in this else deserted spot, and whose smile made for a moment Summer as she passed. The crows who have so long cawed at the Capitol and daily darkened about three P. M. the sunlight of the avenue with their descending plumage, have taken wing for their rural nests. The flag, it is true, still floats over the National Palace, as marking the presence of the Senate, but it, too, looks a trifle weary and woe-begone. The whole place has a sort of deboutonné appearance. Gautier has disbanded his corps of cooks, who hang about the city very like so many Mexican soldiers after a war. Even the good garrulous old Irishwoman, who sells oranges and oysters at the capitol gate, and is ever the last to leave, told me just now, from under a huge umbrella beneath which she was brooding like a moulted hen over five prospective little American citizens, that to-morrow she should close her establishment for the season. Loafers leave the hotel steps and fall back yawningly upon the bar. Around the porches hang motley groups of hacks and drivers and runners, and negroes, tall and small; and within the vestibule cower Celts of every tribe, from the fair-haired, small-nosed child of Londonderry, to the dark-complexioned, Spanish-looking Galwegian, so awkward in action, yet so tender in sentiment. Nor can any heart refuse a sympathetic admiration for the eager pleasure with which these true Hibernians hang about their honest countryman, Smith O'Brien, nor for the herald smiles of welcome which, as he passes down the corridor, leap from the eyes of many a gentle Irish servant-girl, to greet his presence. Lying about the hall, or bumped madly along by some stalwart "Tipperary boy," are trunks and carpet-bags vast, various and innumerable, some, the coffins of toilettes, forever gone, laid out in rich shrouds of unspotted sail-cloth; others, battered bodies that never held a soul, greased, and worn with dust and smoke and toil, stamped, lettered, labeled some for St. Louis, some for St. Petersburg, for Teheran and Texas, for New-Orleans and Oregon. Stalking amid these wrecks of the "season," I yesterday saw Sam Houston, carrying, like Sir C. Napier, his own "small bundle," with its clean shirt and towel, its piece of soap and hair-brush. At the end of the hall stands a large desk, and on the desk lies a big book, and behind the big book frown two tall, stoop-shouldered men with as little of those genial qualities which Will Shakespeare and Ben Jonson assign to "mine host," with as little even of the ordinary civility which becomes every man, as could be found in any hostelry in the whole range of trunk-labels lying in their hall. As you turn to the right, from the main corridor, are two or three divans filled with men mostly dressed in broadcloth, gay with chains of gold and costly rings, some chewing and spitting, others smoking and grinning, not talking much to each other, not talking much to themselves, but all intently thinking, inventing, concocting, scheming, and speculating. Perchance mute Miltons, or mute [illegible], or mute Searings; perchance mute loafers, or mute gamblers, who can tell? but of what-ever class they be they chew and spit, and smoke and grin on to their goal, while at the door grinds away a little Savoyard, with his sunny smile and his organ reminding you of the exquisite miniature of Paul de Kock. At his back swings wide the bar-room door, and around it stand and sit lawyers, politicians journalists, schemers, dreamers, lobbyers, land-jobbers slave-dealers, fillibusters, reformers, Congressmen, correspondents of the Herald, comedians, (for Washington has a theatre,) all more or less drunk, with some æsthetical or intellectual idler looking despondingly on, with a brow of gloom, and disabled by financial stress of weather from joining in the rather ghostly revel. Pass up stairs, and in a "splendiferous" drawing-room you will find a bevy of lazy looking ladies lolling in voluptuous rocking chairs, some self-complacent, some helpless and harassed with the die-away disorder of ennui, some cynical and scoffing, but all prettily dressed and borrowing from the enchantment of distance the indescribable look of the "lady." Approach and the charm will not wholly vanish, for does not one hotel still hold the charming Mrs. Clay, of Alabama, and the lovely Mrs. Pugh, of Ohio, who looks as Lola Montez might were she a lady and no Lola, and the irresistible Mrs. Conrad, of Georgia, with her swanlike figure and her fascinatingly mysterious eyes. In bar and corridor, and drawing-room the men are dumb, but the ladies, of course, keep the river of life flowing with their lively talk.

The all-engrossing topic of the hour, naturally enough, is the Sickles tragedy; and the smallest detail connected with any of the parties is still caught up with eager curiosity and rapt attention. Leslie's paper containing pictures of the scene and the actors, was devoured at a premium a few moments after its arrival on Monday, and in the absence of a sufficient supply, even Harper and others of the smaller fry, came in for an animated demand.

The Grand Jury were called on Monday, and are, I am informed, of more than average respectability and intelligence. The evidence before them being entirely ex parte, they will of course have no hesitation in finding bills against Mr. Sickles. Indeed, Mr. Sickles himself, I am assured, would ask no heavier punishment than to have the bill thrown out, as his impatient desire is to stand before a panel of his countrymen, and when the whole case is unfolded, have their verdict on his act. It was at first anticipated that the trial would come off on Monday next, but I deem that impossible, though the calendar is not heavy; and incline to the belief that it will not take place until the end of the week. On the first day, the Court adjourned, after a tribute to Mr. Key, very skillfully conceived and effectively delivered by Mr. Robert Ould, the new District-Attorney, who is evidently a man of ability, vigor and legal experience; Mr. Barton Key, who was indolent and unread to a degree almost beyond belief, in one filling such a position having committed the conduct of nearly all his official business to Mr. Ould. The trial will naturally awaken, I may say, a great national interest—not from any uncertainty as to its result, for there appears to be no second opinion as to the certainty of Mr. Sickles' acquittal, but from the general desire to see the whole case fairly put, and the million scandals of mystery laid to rest by the plain facts. Already innumerable applications have been made for seats in the Court-house, which is small and confined. The case will be tried before Judge Crawford, a lawyer of good local reputation, and said to be an impartial and pains-taking Judge. For the prosecution, Mr. Ould will, of course, lead, in virtue of his office, and probably, (though as yet none has been retained,) Mr. Key's family will engage associate counsel. For Mr. Sickles, there will appear the Hon. Reverdy Johnson, (who is Mr. Butterworth's counsel,) Messrs. Staunton, Radcliffe, Chilton and Magruder, of this Bar, and of the New-York Bar, Mr. James T. Brady and Mr. John Graham, who have been selected from a legion of volunteers, as proper representatives of the representative from New-York.

Mr. Graham, who has arrived to-day, will open the case, which will be summed up by Mr. Staunton and Mr. Jas. T. Brady, one of Mr. Sickles' earliest, and, through life, one of his warmest friends. The prosecution will be conducted, according to present appearances, with great fairness, and without any spirit of personal bitterness. For though Mr. Key's brother, Mr. Charles Key, of Baltimore, has uttered some threats of vengeance, and his sister, Mrs. Pendleton, is known to have been sorely afflicted by his untimely death, the voice of his uncle, Chief-Justice Taney, all potential in such a case, is for moderation and an absolute surrender of the whole matter to the ordinary course of law.

The guilty connection of Mr. Key with Mrs. Sickles will, I understand, be admitted, to avoid disclosures injurious to the memory of Mr. Key; and the argument of the prosecution will be directed to examine whether the existence of such a criminal connection excuses the slaying of the seducer by the husband's hand, and whether Mr. Sickles committed the act under the extenuating influences of an exasperating conviction of this fact. If precedents are of value it will be difficult for the prosecution to sustain their side of the case. It is but a short time since that, in the neighboring State of Virginia, a certain Mr. Myers proceeded to the bed-room of a man from whom he had sustained a similar injury, and shot him while in bed. Public opinion justified, and a Jury acquitted him without leaving the box. Again, in this very city, and but within the last two years, a young man, from near the Navy-yard, called on the seducer of his sister and demanded the reparation of a marriage for the injured girl, which, being refused, he shot the seducer. Public opinion justified, and a Jury acquitted him without leaving the box. Nor are such precedents confined to this country. Lord Napier has stated it as his belief that in England, if the criminal connection be of the character stated, no Jury could be found to convict the husband.

In France precedents of recent origin are not wanting. In 1849, a M. Rababy received an anonymous communication informing him that a certain M. Cœtlegon was in the habit of entering his wife's apartment from a balcony common to both houses. M. Rababy lay in wait, and surprising M. Cœtlegon in the attempt, an encounter took place from which the seducer managed to escape. M. Rababy seizing a pistol followed him, and meeting on the stairs, not M. Cœtlegon, but a correspondent of the London News, who had been visiting a friend in the same house, fired at him in his extreme rage, and shot him through the jaw. The case was tried before one of the first jurists of France, the father of the Comte de Treilhard, now Secretary of the French Legation at Washington, and the Jury acquitted M. Rababy, condemning M. Cœtlegon, the adulterer, to pay 40,000 francs of damages to the innocent person whom the enraged husband had wounded. And but little more than a year ago, when a lady of rank in one of the provinces requested an old and attached family servant to shoot a scoundrel who had boasted of seducing her daughter, and the deed was actually done, a French Jury acquitted both the injured mother and the gardener, who had adopted her injury as his own.

Mr. Sickles' case was stronger far than these. Not only was his home dishonored, but that dishonor was inflicted with a reckless disregard of decency, which had made the disgrace the common talk of the city. Not in a moment of hot passion, when the rebellious blood might override the better feelings, was the deep wrong done, but a house was coolly hired for the basest uses to which it could be put, and Mr. Sickles' wife dragged through the lowest haunts of infamy to gratify the vilest instincts of degraded passion. And when this dishonor, this repeated, reiterated dishonor was made clear to him; clear by the most unanswerable proofs; clear by the confession of his wife; and amid the grief and agony which the horrid discovery brought upon his home, the husband saw opposite to his window the man who had desolated that home, and who had stained the future of his child, flaunting, as it were, in his very face, the signal that called his wife to infamy—how many men, claiming no Pharisaical superiority over their fellows, will say that at such a moment—as a cold-blooded calculator in some New-York evening paper lays it down—Mr. Sickles should have taken his seat to study the code of the duello, and ascertain how Mr. Key was to be got rid of, according to the strict letter of its laws; or, as another punctilious gentleman opinionizes, write to Mr. Key, and politely inform him of his intention to shoot him, and then calmly bring him down the first time they met? It seems to be forgotten that when, in that moment of fury, Mr. Sickles rushed out to kill Mr. Barton Key, he staked his own life, too. It is true Mr. Key was unarmed. But how was Mr. Sickles to know this? Few men in Washington do go so unarmed, and Mr. Key had received but the Thursday before a letter warning him of the danger of discovery, and of the risks involved in it. His first move, as Mr. Sickles approached him, was to put his hand to the pocket where arms are usually carried. Any student of the human heart and its passions who looks on the story of that tragedy from the moment when Mr. Key waved his signal in front of Sickles' house, to that in which he fell on Lafayette-square, must see that in that time Sickles thought and dreamed neither of consequences to himself nor of the code of the duello.

The question attempted to be raised as to whether Mr. Sickles himself was addicted or not to licentious indulgences in his youth, is entirely outside the record. His early vices, if he had such, certainly did not justify Mr. Key in robbing him of the honor of his home, and his loved and only child of her future.

Few men, I presume, including even the editors of the Evening Post, would like to have their past lives rummaged, and all the indiscretions of the hear dragged forth in such an hour as this, which has overtaken Mr. Sickles. But this fact is patent, and admitted even by all Mr. Key's friends, that from the time Mr. Key was introduced to his house, and ever since his first residence here, Mr. Sickles' conduct as a father, as a husband, and as a man, has been no only blameless, but guarded by the most jealous care. No one in Washington can say that he has ever seen him even in a gambling house, which here is the favorite fashionable resort of men whom the country "delights to honor," or at a bar-room, much less at any place of more dubious character. His whole soul appeared to be centred on ambition, the advancement of his political adherents in New York, and the cultivation of a happy domestic life. To his Parliamentary duties he was scrupulously attentive, and he was considered by many, among others by the Speaker, as the ablest member of the present House. Every Tuesday he set aside for his wife's receptions, and every Thursday for entertainments to his political and personal friends, where were always to be met much of what was most brilliant and best in Washington society. Is it possible to conceive that the act by which he scattered all his dreams, and rushed on a risk of life and all that gives it charm, was not the work of a mad impulse of passion? or that it was the act of a cool, calculating, bad man?

Of Mr. Sickles' past life before he entered upon his strictly political career, I know little. That the Evening Post, of your City, should be more ready to speak upon that subject is not surprising, since, during just that period of his youth, which that journal alleges to have been the blackest and most disgraceful, Mr. Sickles was the personal friend and the associate in his business and his home of a gentleman prominently connected with the Post, and now absent from the country. But in dealing with the antecedents of Mr. Sickles, it is not necessary to go back to this part of his career. It is better certainly to dwell upon the temper which has actuated men like Mr. Fernando Wood and Mr. G. J. Tucker, who certainly have had no reason to feel tenderly for Mr. Sickles, to offer him in this season of his distress their sympathy and their support.

Just strictures, were they but justly founded, have qeen passed upon Mr. Sickles' alleged neglectful indulgence of his wife in all her tastes for fashion and society, without a proper controlling care. But it is not true that he did so indulge her.

When, last Spring, the attentions of Mr. Key first became the subject of remark and scandal, Mr. Sickles instantly, on the first whisper reaching his ears, called upon that gentleman and received from him asseverations of the honorable character of his regard, so solemn and so strong that, coupled with those of his wife, he could not, and did not for a moment after, cherish a suspicion. Mr. Key went so far as to seal his asseveration by bringing his own pure sister to call on Mrs. Sickles, which Mr. Sickles had a right to feel was a complete guarantee of the purity of his own relations with her. Still desiring his wife to be not only safe from, but above suspicion, he forbade her to receive Mr. Key except when invited, and on her regular reception day, in the presence of company, a restraint which they both submitted to and observed. It was probably this which induced Mr Key to lease a house of assignation. Nor in any instance, save one, has Mrs. Sickles been allowed either to go to a dinner party or ball except in his own company. The one exception was the fancy ball of Mrs. Gwin, when, on her mother's representation that her absence might give a color of reality to what then but wore the shape of fiction, he permitted her to attend that ball. Whatever interviews have taken place between Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles since then, have been in his absence at Congress or out of town, at the house which Mr. Key rented for the purpose. Had Mr. Sickles imposed any severer restraint those who are now ready to accuse him of laxity of vigilance would be the first to brand him as a domestic tyrant deserving and provoking by his harshness the fate he met. The more the facts of this sad story are known, the more it gathers of interest. Last evening I took tea with an old Italian gentleman whom I met at Sickles' prison, and who, though he has mingled little in the world, possesses a most refined and cultivated mind. He told me that for thirty years he had been the intimate friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Sickles' family, and his story of those years was at the present moment so interesting, when so many fictions are floating about, that I thought I would give it to you in the simple touching words in which he told it.

Mrs. Bagioli, he told me, the mother of Mrs. Sickles, was born in the year 1819, at Croton Falls, Westchester County. Her maiden name was Cooke. At the age of fourteen she came with her family to New-York, and was shortly after adopted by the well-known Italian poet and author, Lorenzo da Ponte. She was a bright and somewhat beautiful girl, and very shortly after her adoption was married to Antonio Bagioli, a composer and professor of music, who was a visitor at Da Ponte's house. M. Bagioli is a native of Italy, but has resided in your City for thirty years, and by those who know him, is said to be much respected and esteemed. Mrs. Bagioli bore to her husband an only child, Therese Bagioli, the unhappy wife of Daniel E. Sickles, upon whom was lavished her parents' undivided love. No expense was spared to afford her all those accomplishments which form the best accompaniment of beauty. She was educated at the best schools of New-York, and, finally, sent to the Manhattanville Convent of the Sacred Heart. Da Ponte's son, Lorenzo da Ponte, Jr., resided at this time with his father, and was professor of belles lettres, philosophy and literature in the University of New-York. With him, as with Dugald Stewart, in Scotland, were placed several young men for education. Of this number were Mr. Eames, of this City, Mr. Bigelow, of the Evening Post, and Mr. Sickles. The Bagiolis also resided in the same house, and continued to live there after the death of Prof. Da Ponte. Living in the same house in which his wife was born, Mr. Sickles saw her grow up from infancy to womanhood. Their association gradually ripened into love. He pressed his suit upon her father, who at once made serious objections to the match, not from dislike to Mr. Sickles, but from the belief that his daughter was too young for marriage, had seen nothing of the world, and was of a mind too unformed to read correctly her own heart. Parental opposition in this, as in so many other deplorable cases, only ended in a clandestine marriage, which was performed before Mayor Kingsland, the Mayor of the City of New-York. The consequences of this secret wedding soon made concealment impossible, and the marriage, after the full confession required by the Roman Catholic Church, was solemnized again, and received the seal of religious ratification from the hands of Dr. Hughes, the Roman Catholic Archbishop, at his private residence. The fruit of that wedding was one fair child, with a face like her mother's, who, unconsciously, at this moment suffers, perhaps, the deepest injury from her mother's surrender to sin. It is, to-day, precisely twelve months since that father and mother, now so deeply stricken, were making with affectionate zeal gayest preparations for the christening of this child, for whom the President, Mr. Buchanan, and the charming Mrs Senator Slidell had voluntarily sought the sponsorship. It is a singular coincidence that this little girl Mrs. Sickles, and Mr. Sickles himself, were all three only children, over whose miserable fate three living mothers now hang broken-hearted. Mr. Sickles' conduct as a husband can be best described, and the charges against him best answered in the public words of the father of his unfortunate wife since this tragedy, "You have heaped," he writes, "on my child affection, kindness, devotion, generosity. You have been a good son, a true friend, and a devoted, kind, loving husband and father." Poor old man, as seated often of a Summer's evening beneath the veranda of a house that looks over the pleasant waters of the Hudson, he watched his sweet little grandchild sport upon the green, he could have little dreamed upon how sad a pair its doors were to close before his days should ripen to their end! Mr. Sickles, Senior, has assigned it to his son's wife as a residence so long as she remains under the protection of her father, nor will anything be left unprovided for her which can constitute a comfortable home.

The letter of warning which Mr. Key received on Thursday, and which he showed to Mrs. Sickles at the ball at Willard's on that night—the last of their meeting—was written, it is thought, by a lady. It was full of "Dear Barton," and other such endearing expressions, whereas the letter which conveyed to Mr. Sickles the intimations and proofs of his dishonor, was either written, or feigned to be written, by some coarse, illiterate person. Strange, if two different parties should have selected the same night to send a missive of warning.

Mr. Sickles still continues in the cell to which he was conveyed on the day of the disastrous explosion. It is on the left of the hall as you enter the prison, being generally used as a watch-room, and is close and stifling. But Mr. Sickles has constructed a wheel on the window for ventilation. There, or walking on the plot in front, he may be seen all day receiving his visitors and faithful friends.

Among the many friends from whom he has received letters of the warmest sympathy have been the President, Mr. Buchanan, Mr. J. Wadsworth, Mr. Comptroller Church, Mr. Oakey Hall, Mr. R. J. Dillon, and Col. Stebbins, and his list of personal visitors has included Mr. Vice-President Breckinridge and members of the Senate of every party, Mr. Speaker Orr and members of the lower House of every side, Mr Secretary Cobb, Mr. Attorney-General Black and most of the Cabinet. From a list of many clergymen who had called and written, I recall the names of the Revs. D. A. Bogert, C. J. White, C. H. Buckler, and in especial, Dr. Haley, who has been unremitting in his attention. On visiting Mr. Sickles this morning I found a beautiful bouquet on his desk from a worthy clergyman of the District with the following Latin lines:

Quod sors feret, feremus æquo animo
Rebus in angustis facile est contemnere vitam
Fortiter ille facit qui miser esse potest.

Mr. Sickles does not look well, as has been represented. Mental suffering and confinement within a prison's walls have told severely upon him, paling his cheek and shaking his vigorous constitution. To-day Mrs. Pendleton, of Ohio, sister of Mr. Key, left for that State, accompanied by Mr. Key's four orphan children, her own two children, and the two children of her widowed sister, the accomplished Mrs. Blunt, who it may be remembered gave readings last Summer in New York, and more recently with great success in the Southern and Western States. The sympathy of the whole city goes with her.

But to turn from this sad theme. The houses of both the Ministers of England and France are advertised to let. The former was once the residence of Mr. Hamilton Fish. The latter, which is on the heights of Georgetown, and commands a beautiful view of the vale of the Potomac, was long occupied by Mr. Crampton, the late British Minister. Lord Napier expects Lord Lyons in a few days, and purposes leaving in a fortnight. He will be accompanied by Mr. Erskine, the present Secretary of Legation, whose place will be taken by Mr. Irving, from Vienna. Mr. Warre, a son of the member for Ripon, and a nephew by marriage of Charles Kingsley, who was here some two years since as unpaid attaché, and has since filled the same post at Vienna and at St. Petersburg, has been appointed paid attaché to this Legation in the room of Captain Hope. In society here he was extremely popular.

Though it is possible that, owing to the changes which the removal of Pelissier from London, and the elevation of the present French minister at Lisbon, to the Senate, will necessarily make in the whole French diplomatic corps, all the appointments have not been sufficiently determined on by Count Walewski to enable Count Sartiges to receive a positive official notification of his removal, it is not less certain and positively known that his removal has been determined. It is now near ten months since he applied for leave of absence and a European mission, this climate not having agreed with his constitution, and his accomplished and fascinating wife having shared his anxiety for a change. He will probably be appointed either to a high Germanic mission or to that made vacant at Lisbon. Count Sartiges entered the diplomatic service in 1831 as attaché at Rome, thence was removed to Rio Janeiro, where he remained some years; from thence he was sent as Secretary, first to Constantinople and then to Athens, then appointed Minister at Teheran and from Persia finally promoted to the Legation in America. Viscomte de Serre, his probable successor, is a fine soldierly gentleman and a bachelor. He was for some time chef de Cabinet in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at Paris, was thence sent as Secretary to Vienna and from Vienna promoted to his present post in the Grand Duchy of Baden.

Mr. Stoeckel, the Russian Minister, by the last letters, was about to leave St. Petersburgh, where he and Mrs. Stoeckel had been treated with the most marked kindness and consideration by the Emperor, for Paris, where he proposed passing a month, and thence after a fortnight in London, returning here at the close of April or early in May.

Though Washington looks empty, fashion cannot be said to have wholly fled. The Chevalier Wikoff may still be found on the avenue and at Willard's discussing the topic of the hour with that mixture of philosophy and pathos which renders his conversation at once so luminously clear and so mystically profound.

TAMMANY HALL ON THE CUBAN QUESTION.

The Annexation Doctrine Indorsed.

Speeches of Senator Brown, of Mississippi, Hon. John Cochrane and Capt. Rynders.

The New-York Democracy assembled, last night, in Tammany Hall, for the purpose of expressing their views as to the policy of extending "the Area of Freedom," àpropos of the movement regarding the acquisition of Cuba. The meeting was a large one, and would have been larger, but for the rain which sent away numbers who, waiting the opening of the door, had gathered round a bonfire that spluttered for a while in front of the Hall.

Mr. Wm. D. Kennedy called the meeting to order, and Ex-Mayor Mickle was called to the chair. Edward McConnell submitted a long list of vice-presidents and secretaries, which included the following names: Daniel F. Tiemann, John Van Buren, Ausburn Birdsall, Augustus Schell Isaac Townsend, Isaac Bell, Jr., August Belmont, S. J. Tilden, Benjamin M. Whitlock, Edmund Haight, Jay Jarvis, Smith Ely, Jr., Thomas McSpeddon, Philip W. Engs, Hiram Cranston, Edward Cooper, Michael Tuomey, Stephen P. Russell, John T. Henry, E. C. West, John R. Briggs, Thomas W. Adams, A. D. Russell, M. T. Brennan, John H. McCunn, C. Godfrey Gunther, Wm. N. McIntyre, Douglas Taylor, John O'Grady, George N. Saunders, F. I. A. Boole, Jas. R. Steers, E. L. Purdy, Michael Halpin, S. J. Cornell and John H. Chambers.

Among the gentlemen present, in addition to those already mentioned as officers of the meeting, were Isaac V. Fowler, Senator Brown, of Mississippi; the Hon. John Cochrane, John Clancy, Colonel Delavan, Thomas Dunlap, Captain Rynders, L. F. Harrison, William Fagan and many other prominent supporters of the Administration.

Mr. Fowler submitted the resolutions, and, in presenting himself for that purpose, was loudly cheered.

The whereases, of which there were not a few, declared that the policy involved in the acquisition of Cuba harmonizes with all the traditions of the Democracy in the past, is rendered advisable in the present, and is an ultimate necessity for the future.

The resolutions, which were equally numerous, may be summed up in this one, which was last:

Resolved, That the bond of mutual advantages and interests between the United States and Cuba makes it imperative upon the former to use all just exertions and make all reasonable sacrifices for the liberation of the latter; and that any attempt on the part of any European Power, other than Spain, to intermeddle in the settlement of the terms on which the island is to be liberated and annexed, should be regarded as an act of domineering international dictation to be resented and set aside in whatever manner and at whatever cost the circumstances should render necessary. Democracy, like the ocean tide, will not back at the bidding of any King. [Applause.]

The resolutions, as well as the list of secondary officers, were adopted unanimously.

Senator Brown, of Mississippi, was the first speaker His appearance drew forth loud and repeated plaudits. He commenced by declaring that Cuba must and shall be ours. [Loud applause.] The decree had gone forth, and there existed nowhere on earth any Power to revoke it. The question was, By what means should we make the acquisition? Three modes had been proposed. First, by purchase; that he regarded as the most honorable. Second, by conquest; that he regarded as the most certain. [Applause.] Third, through the agency of that mysterious man, known in the political nomenclature as Fillibuster; that he regarded as the most probable. [Applause.] But whether by the one or by the other, or by all of these agencies combined, he would say again that 'Cuba must and shall be ours.'—[A Voice—"So she will"]—and no power or Government exists on earth to prevent it. If Spain was disposed to sell the Island, he, for one, stood prepared to pay for it. America stood prepared to pay Spain $100,000,000 for it, and if that were not enough she would pay her $200,000,000 for it. But if Spain should not be disposed to sell, then his next proposition was to propose negotiations with her for the settlement of present and past differences. [Applause.] He proposed to have indemnity for the past and security for the future. If, he repeated, she should be indisposed to sell the island, he would seize it for past wrongs as indemnity for the past, and then negotiate for future security. [Cheers.] If we could not bring the Government to that point, if the proverbial timidity of old age, if Mr. Buchanan and General Cass, the President and Secretary of State, could not be brought to that point, then he was for repealing the neutrality laws as derogatory to American freemen, and acceptable to foreign tyrants only—[loud cheers]—laws never emanating from the heart of the American people, but forced on us by British and other foreign influences. He would repeal those laws, and cry to the fillibusters, "take it, and 'let slip the dogs of war.'" He had grown weary of having the young, proud, happy and glorious America kneeling to the Queen of Spain and begging for justice. It was the mission of our people not to beg justice, but to demand it, and to have it because it is their right. He would have no more dallying with Spain. [A Voice—"Nor no other country." Great laughter.] He would have no dallying with Spain nor with any other country. [Applause.] He knew these were bold enunciations, but they were not bolder than he felt. The people whom he represented were determined to stand by him. In wanting Cuba, we wanted, first, territorial extension. Let "No pent up Utica contract our powers," rather "Let the whole boundless continent be ours." The advantages arising from this policy of territorial expansion were well illustrated in the cases of Louisiana and Texas. But we wanted Cuba, not only for the purpose of territorial expansion, but of national defence, and in order to extend our agricultural resources, for we wanted more sugar and cheaper sugar. Then, again, we wanted Cuba because we wanted an extension of our commerce. But, besides, he wanted Cuba for the extension of Slavery. That was his individual wish. In that he spoke for himself, and not for his party. He wished Greeley to understand that. [Loud cheers.] He wished Garrison to understand it. He wished all the dirty Abolition crew to understand it. But he would repeat that he wanted the island for the extension of Slavery; and in saying this he spoke for himself and those who agreed with him, and for no one else. [Cheers.] But we were told that if we took the Island of Cuba we should offend England and France! The devil! Suppose they did. Suppose England and France should get on stilts and say, "We object." Brother Jonathan, he supposed, would say, "Object, and be d——d!" [Cheers and laughter.] When England, "the bloody old bruiser"—[cheers]—had gone slashing round the world, insulting everybody, and plundering everybody, did we ever object?" (Here some one on the platform was so indiscreet as to object to the speaker, whereupon, the malcontent was pitched to the floor headlong. A serious muss was threatened, and there was much confusion for a time, but the uproar was suppressed in its incipient stages. During the remainder of proceedings, no interruption was attempted and everything passed off pleasantly.]

Senator Brown resumed, by asserting that there was not a continent, a country or a clime, over which England did not exercise some sort of a dominion, and he asked when did our country ever interpose any objection? Then what of France? By what right would she undertake to interfere? Had not she, like England, extended her commerce and her dominions everywhere, and when did we ever interfere to prevent her? When we gave justice we exacted justice in return, and the justice which we meted out to others we must demand for ourselves. Were we less the friends of the world than England or France? Unquestionably not. But England and France would not interfere. His word for it, they would do no such thing. England and France were no more anxious to fight us than we were to fight them. They could do us a vast deal of damage in case of war, but we could do them a confounded sight more. [Loud cheers.] He came from a State whose resources consisted of the 560 000 bags of cotton she exported yearly. But there they were not alarmed. They could lock up their bags as long as England could afford to starve her operatives. [Cheers.] Let them go to war with us about Cuba, or anything else, and he would proclaim that the chances were twenty to one that, before the war should be closed, we would see an American general hoisting the Stars and Stripes on the Tuileries and planting it upon the towers of St. James'. [Cheers.] But then we were told it would be an insult to Spanish pride to obtain Cuba. [Laughter and cheers.] In two centuries and a quarter Spain made a series of surrenders of a most important portion of her territory—one being to the United States, and another (which was the twenty-first) being the surrender of Mexico to the Mexicans themselves. We might as well tell him, then, that a woman who had been debauched twenty-one times could be offended by making proposals a twenty-second time, as that Spain could now be offended by the offer to acquire Cuba. Like most women of pleasure, Spain doubtless was apt to be a little coy at the start—[laughter]—but if the United States would now push their chances, either by purchase or by conquest, or by the spirit of fillibusterism, two years may not elapse until Cuba is safely in the embrace of this Union. But it would take bold and determined action, it would take the assumption of all the responsibility, paying money and shedding blood if it became necessary, to succeed in this enterprise. If we were not prepared for that why, then, it was better not to make the attempt. [Applause.] The honorable Senator proceeded to declare his wishes for the acquisition of Cuba, because of its slaves, and because he believed Slavery to be of divine origin. He exhibited great anxiety in regard to the mode in which the reporters should dispose of his speech, and, addressing them directly, hoped that his remarks in regard to Slavery would be reported in the first person, so that nobody else should be committed by them. He went on to charge the Republicans with having dodged the Cuban question in the United States Senate, and described them as having played the lap wing, and scuttled away from the issue when he moved, as a test question, to lay the thirty million appropriation bill on the table. In the desperation of the moment, they defeated a most important appropriation bill, that for the postal service, thus bringing the Government almost to bankruptcy. But, he observed, "The galled jade may wince; our withers are unwrung." [Applause.]

Mr. Brown was followed by the Hon. John Cochrane, who was much applauded. He introduced his speech by giving a geographical description of Cuba The waters of the Gulf, said he, that centuries ago rolled their waves northward, took her away from her mother, and now she asks to be received by the people to whom she in reality belongs. She meets on the one side the turned backs and folded arms of the Republicans, and on the other the cheerful faces and open hands of the Democracy, for with them the cry is "Come," and it has become a party watchword. Columns of statistics declare that the wealth and prosperity of the country demand that Cuba should be ours. Mr. Cochrane then proceeded to show that our commercial interests require that the Island in question should be under the control of our Government. When the union shall be accomplished the rice, cotton and sugar markets will belong to the United States. Then the peace of Europe will be in the hands of America, and the latter will be the arbiter of the interests of the former. The true test of civilization, said Mr. Cochrane, laughable as it may seem, is the consumption of sugar. To prove this point statistics were quoted. The year ending the 30th June, 1857, over $51,000,000 of this article was imported into this country, and of this amount more than $41,000,000 worth came from Cuba. Unless commerce pioneer the way, it will be impossible for the acquisition of Cuba to be even attempted, and figures demonstrated beyond question that our mercantile interests demand that we should possess the island. All this sugar, coffee and tobacco was paid for with hard coin. Is this mercantile equilibrium? Are not the butchers and the shoemakers to be allowed to send the product of their skill in return? Mr. Cochrane then gave a glowing description of the impetus which would be given to every branch of industry when Cuba should become one of the United States. If we do not take it, said he, some fine morning you will awake and find it sailing into the Bay of New York. [Laughter.] He would take it, if need be, by the strong arm of power, and this could be no violation of the law of nations, for England and the United States itself had already done many similar acts. Mr. Cochrane was frequently interrupted by hearty applause.

The Chairman announced that Senator Benjamin had been detained in Washington by business, and that Hon. Mr. Cavanagh was in town, but was kept away from the meeting by a severe sore throat.

Amid cries for "Rynders," that gentleman came forward and made a characteristic speech. He said he could not well break his oath of office, but only repeal the neutrality laws and he would be inclined to take a pretty strong squint at that rich plantation down off the coast of Florida. The difference, he said, between our taking territory and England's taking it is, that we make the people our own, while she subjugates them. Captain R. continued speaking for about half an hour, and when he had concluded the meeting adjourned.

DELIBERATE MURDER IN HARTFORD.—The Hartford Courant, March 14, says:

"Yesterday afternoon there occurred, at No. 54 South Hudson-street, the most horribly cool-blooded and atrocious murder that it was ever our painful duty to chronicle. It appears that Christopher C. Colson, whose wife some few months since procured a bill of divorce from him, on the grounds of habitual drunkenness and cruelty, has, since that time, followed her with continual menaces, and frequently publicly threatened to take her life and to kill her mother and sister. Saturday night last he slept at the house of his brother, James H. Colson, baker, No. 54 South Hudson-street. The house is occupied by four families, Mr. Colson living on the first floor in the north half. Christopher was sitting in one of the basement rooms, in conversation with a Mr. Barker, when his former wife, who has since the divorce taken her maiden name of Sarah Burns, came in from her mother's. Colson advanced to his wife and endeavored to take her hand, but she repulsed him with the remark that 'her hand was now her own, and that she did not wish to have anything to do with him.' She then attempted to leave the room, when he followed her, caught her by the dress behind, and cut her throat from the right ear to a point just below the chin, making two horrible gashes, severing the carotid artery and partially severing the jugular vein. He manifested very little passion or feeling of any kind, but remarking that he 'hoped she was satisfied,' threw his bloody weapon—a large two-edged fish knife—under the table, and proceeded leisurely to the pantry, where he commenced devouring some pies that were stored there. The inmates of the house were, of course, thrown into the greatest consternation and excitement by the terrible event that had just transpired. Some attempt was made to arrest the murderer, but he was so much held in dread by those present, who feared that he might be still armed, that he was allowed, after he had eaten and drank what he wanted, to leave the house unmolested. From the hotel he walked in a leisurely manner up Ferry street till he came nearly opposite the old Bartlett Tavern, where he was arrested."

FIRE AT STATEN ISLAND.—A fire broke out at 7 o'clock last evening, in the residence of Frederick Wetmore, Clifton, S. I. The building was completely destroyed; the furniture was saved. The fire originated in one of the heaters.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—MARCH 14.

Before Judge Hall.

SENTENCES.

Henry Bulled, the second mate of the Wild Pigeon, convicted of cruel and unusual punishment, was brought up this morning for sentence. Judge HALL said that in consideration of the youth of the prisoner and the circumstances of the case, he had concluded to suspend sentence, and if the prisoner behaved himself it was probable that he would hear no more of the affair.

Lewis F. Smith, a negro, indicted for an assault with a dangerous weapon, pleaded guilty. He has been sick in prison for a long time with the scurvy, and in consideration of his state of health and his long imprisonment already, notwithstanding that his assault was with a knife and under circumstances of aggravation, Judge HALL sentenced him to be imprisoned for one year and to pay a fine of 6 cents.

REFUSED TO DO DUTY ON SHIPBOARD.

John Brown and five others, part of the crew of the brig Zephyr, were put on trial charged with an endeavor to make a revolt. The Captain and mate were examined and proved a decided and continued refusal, on the part of all the crew, to do duty on board the brig while she was lying at anchor in the harbor of Messina in Sicily, when she was in danger by reason of her anchors dragging. The vessel did come in collision with another vessel before the captain could procure other men. The reason given by the men was the bad quality of the provisions. The cook testified that the captain ordered him to boil the beef without previously soaking it to get the salt out, so that it was not fit to eat, but he would have eaten it if he had been hungry. The captain testified that this order was given to punish the men for having wasted the food which was given them, and that the men had other food which was good. All the men except the prisoners did go to work finally. The jury found the prisoners not guilty.

For the prosecution, Mr. Dwight; for the defence, Mr. Ridgway and Mr. Hart.

The jury were then discharged till Monday, the 28th inst.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Clerke.

HABEAS CORPUS CASE.

Petition of Mrs. A. E. Judah.—In this case a writ of habeas corpus was granted, returnable this morning. It appeared that Mrs. Judah is a Roman Catholic, and Mr. Judah a Hebrew. Difficulties having arisen between them, their eldest daughter, Maria Louisa Judah, was sent by her father, some five years ago, to his mother, with whom she resided till about four weeks ago, when the grandmother died. Mrs. Judah then applied to her husband, who was living separate from her, for the custody of the child, which was refused.

Subsequent to the death of the grandmother, the daughter had gone voluntarily to reside with her uncle, Mr. Edward Judah, to whom the writ of habeas corpus was issued. The return to the writ set forth that the girl had left Mr. Edward Judah and gone to Canada, where some of her relatives resided.

Counsel for the mother of the child contended that Mr. Judah had rendered himself liable to punishment for contempt in persuading the daughter to leave with intent to avoid the effect of the writ, and that the child being under 14 years of age, the mother was entitled to her custody.

The Judge intimated that he did not think Mr. Judah could be punished under the writ now before him, but he took the papers for consideration.

THE HATCH DIVORCE CASE.

Cora L. V. Hatch vs. Benj. F. Hatch.—In this case the injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his wife in any way was made perpetual. Lemuel Bradford vs. William Bartlett.—Motion to set aside judgment denied with $50 costs, without prejudice to the right of defendant to apply to the favor of the Court.

Before Justice Davies.

L. G. Wood vs. Robert Chew.—A verdict for plaintiff for $2,071 25 was rendered on Saturday. This is the action to foreclose a mortage reported in the TIMES, of March 11.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Justice Woodruff.

Lamb vs. The Mayor, &c.—This is the action to recover for horses drowned in backing off a pier, on which was no suitable string-piece, and was reported in the TIMES of March 12. The Jury rendered a verdict for $757 84 for the plaintiff.

John Handing vs. Danforth W. Barney.—This suit is brought to recover the value of a draft bought by the plaintiff from the defendant, who is President of the Joint Stock Company of "Wells Fargo & Co." He alleges that 18th March, 1856, he bought a draft of $3 300 of the house in San Francisco, payable to his own order at Boston. That while returning from San Francisco he was robbed of his draft, and that upon arriving at Boston, in June, 1856, he demanded payment, which was refused.

The Company deny that he ever bought any draft.

J. F. Williams, for plaintiff; W. Fullerton, for defendant.

SPECIAL TERM.

Before Judge Hoffman.

Benjamin Lockwood vs. Aaron Swartz.—The plaintiff in this suit purchased of the defendant his business of a City letter express, for $5,000, and this purchase he now seeks to cancel.

He alleges that in November, 1856, Swartz told him that his business was a source of profit to him of $6,000 per year, and that in consequence of this information he, on the 29th of November, became a purchaser of the business carried on by Swartz, at No. 7 Chatham Square, for $5,000. That in March, 1857, he became fully satisfied that the business would not and never had yielded more than one quarter of the sum stated by Swartz, ($6,000 per year,) and that he therefore believes Swartz to be guilty of fraud towards him.

Mr. Swartz sets up that so far from being false were his statements, that they were actually true, and that if the business has fallen off under the administration of this plaintiff, he (Swartz) is not to blame for it. And further, he says that he was not desirous of selling out his business, and only did so upon repeated importunities. Still on.

Brownlee & Bovee, for plaintiff; B. C. Leveridge, for defendant.

DECISIONS.

Before Justice Moncrief.

Darius Geer vs. Louis Pignolet.—Motion denied, with $10 costs.

Timothy Cornwell vs. Charles A. Stetson.—Impleaded, &c. The default is opened, and defendant Stetson permitted to put in an answer within ten days, and to take short notice of trial, if necessary, upon payment of $13 costs. The execution will be discharged, and the judgment stands as security, without prejudice to the defendant to move to set it aside upon other papers.

Robert H. Corbet vs. Charles H. Ward et al.—Judgment settled.

Wheeler vs. Buckman.—Upon payment of the sum of $66, an order may be entered vacating and discharging the order appointing the Receiver in this action.

Trial of James Stephens for the Murder of his Wife by Poison.

SEVENTH DAY.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

At the opening of Court yesterday morning, Mr. Alfred W. Brush, one of the Jurors, produced a certificate from his medical attendant, Dr. Cheesebro, which states that he was unable, without danger, to perform the duties of a juror any further. He therefore wished to be excused. On Saturday, after leaving the Court, he was prostrated with vertigo. In August last he was attacked by paralysis, and the physician said that protracted attendance in the crowded Court-room would renew that attack.

The Judge replied that the Court of Appeals had decided that no capital case, even with the prisoner's consent, could be tried with eleven jurors, and that the effect of the juror's withdrawal would be to break up the trial, and throw away all that they had been doing the last week. He would consent to take a recess whenever Mr. Brush should desire, and would do all in the power of the Court to afford him every indulgence.

District-Attorney Waterbury told the Juror he would have a carriage in attendance to bring him from his house each morning, and convey him back every evening. Mr. Brush then consented to renew his duties as a Juror.

Ann Fee examined by the District-Attorney—I reside at No. 146 Twentieth-street, between Second and Third avenues; my husband is an engineer; I know the prisoner James Stephens; I was acquainted with Mrs. Stephens over seven years; I saw her before she was taken sick, and on the day she died; on the day I saw her before she was taken sick, she sat about six feet from the window; I did not observe anything in particular, except a black eye; I never heard her say she was perfectly well; she was always grumbling; she told me she was bad; she had a pain in her chest; she was then in my room; she said she had to go home to get her husband's dinner; she said Dr. Cadmus had been to see her, but she was at market.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cushing—It was some months before her sickness that she had a black eye; I did not notice a black eye during her sickness; I knew how she got her black eye; I asked her how she came by it; she told me she was painting a chest in her bed-room; she left the cover of it open; she got up to give her little girl a drink; she knocked her eye against it; she was sick a year or two before that time; I do not know what ailed her; she told me that Dr. Cadmus told her, if she took that sickness again she would never get over it; I have lived in the next house to Mr. and Mrs. Stephens; they lived happy and united.

Direct Resumed—It was some time before Mrs. Stephens told me that she must go home to get her husband's dinner that I saw her black eye; she was a kind of person who would not have a Doctor if she could help herself; she would not put her husband to the expense of one.

Catherine Meehan examined by District Attorney—I reside at No. 164 East Twenty-seventh-street; I saw Mrs. Stephens, I think, two days before her death; she was lying on the bed in her own house; she sent for me to know of anything that was good for her for the vomiting; she said to me then, she was very low; I told her I hoped she would very soon recover; she told me then, "I am afraid I won't recover, for my throwing up is not natural;" she wished me to look in the bason; the contents looked yellow and blackish.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cushing—I always knew Stephens and his wife to live happy and comfortable; after the death of Mrs. Stephens, I cannot say who did the errands; I have seen Mr. Stephens' little girl going out sometimes for errands, and once or twice on rainy days.

Direct resumed—I only know how Mr. and Mrs. Stephens lived together from report; on those rainy days I do not know if the child was going to school or not.

Maria Foley, examined by District Attorney—I reside at No. 170 East Twenty-fifth-street; I saw Mrs. Stephens during her last illness; I saw Mrs. Stephens' little girl; she was sick and vomiting; it was in the afternoon; Mrs. Stephens was in bed; it was about a week before her death; I cannot remember exactly.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cushing—I always thought Stephens and his wife lived very agreeable and very well.

John O'Brien examined by the District Attorney—I reside at Bellevue Hospital; I am keeper of the dead-house; I was there when the body of Sophia Stephens was brought there; Dr. Wood, Coroner Connery and my assistant were there; the body was left in the City dead room; it was brought in a coffin with a square box over it; it was brought in a wagon; the coffin was opened, and the two Miss Bell's were there to identify it; Coroner Connery swore them; it was left there all night; the windows were fastened and the door locked; the man who brings dead bodies came there; I went in with him; some doctors came and wanted to see the body; I had orders from Coroner Connery and Dr. Wood to allow no one to see the body, and I would not allow them to see the body; the body was moved up stairs the next day before the post-mortem examination; it was taken to the pathological room; Dr. Wood and Coroner Connery, and I think Dr. Doremus, were there in charge; Dr. Doremus took some part of the body away in glass jars; the rest of the body was left there; I and my assistant kept the keys of the room; if any one went into the room I always went along with them; I never let any one touch the body at all.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cushing—I was in this Court room on Saturday; I had some conversation with Dr. Wood; he asked me if I let anybody go in to see the body; I told him Yes; he was annoyed with me for doing so; the body remained in that room; I cannot tell how many persons went in and saw it; I saw Mr. Shafler there; I think I saw you there; I do not recollect of anybody coming there and cutting off pieces of the flesh; the Coroner's Jury went up and saw it; I do not recollect of any ladies coming there besides the Miss Bell's; I do not know if Mr. Cardwell was there; I saw Robert Bell in the room.

Direct resumed—I do not know how often Mr. Shaffer was there; I do not recollect whether he was in the Dead-house more than once; Dr. Doremus, Dr. Wood, or persons in their company were the only parties that touched the body; Robert Bell never interfered with the body in any manner.

John Sweeney, examined by the District-Attorney—I am helper to John O'Brien in the Dead-house at Bellevue Hospital; I helped to carry it up stairs; I had the key of the room in which it was placed when John O'Brien wasn't there; he was generally there; I did not allow any person to go in at all.

Cross-examination unimportant.

Adam Zenker, examined by Mr. Sedgwick—I reside at No. 423 Houston-street; I am a doctor of medicine; I graduated in the New-York Medical College; I received my chemical education in Giessen, under Professors Liebig and Wöhler, in 1846; I have continued the study of chemistry to this time; for eight years I have turned my attention particularly to poisons; I have lectured to students and given practical instructions in the laboratory; have poisoned animals with arsenic; I have coroners' cases to examine; sometimes the coroners send us cases of poisoned stomach; I went with Dr. Doremus to Bellevue Hospital in this case on September 24; I took some new glass jars; we cleaned them, dried them, and covered them with new oil silk; I saw Doctor Wood make the post mortem examination; Dr. Wood removed the shroud from the body. The witness proceeded to detail the particulars of the post mortem. This testimony was little more than a recapitulation of Dr. Wood's testimony. We discovered arsenic from the analysis of the viscera that was taken away in the jars; we brought out metallic arsenic and arsenious acid.

Berne L. Budd examined by Mr. Sedgwick—I live at No. 143 13th-street; I have been a doctor of medicine since 1848; I have pursued the study of toxicological chemistry for 17 years; I studied with Professors Doremus, Torrey and Draper; I am connected with the New-York Medical College as assistant lecturer on chemistry; I took part in the chemical examination of the body of Mrs. Stephens; I made an examination of the intestines, removing from the small intestines a yellowish, pasty mass, and from the large intestines a similar substance, but of a darker color, the aggregate being about a teaspoon full. (The testimony of this witness was nearly cumulative. He described the process of analyzing the remains and preparing the acids in much the same manner, but not at so great a length, as Dr. Doremus testified on Friday.) Arsenic was found in the body of the deceased.

Robert Bell, examined by Mr. Schaffer—I am from twenty-six to twenty-seven years of age; I was born in County Cavan, Ireland; I am the brother of Sophia and Fanny Bell; Mrs. Stephens was my father's sister; I remember perfectly well their marriage; they were married in Bellturbet, County Cavan; I think my father was present at the marriage; I think they came to this country three years afterwards; I came to this country in July last; I have never seen the prisoner write; I have received letters from him while I was in Ireland; I corresponded with him; I was then in Dublin; I sent him several letters; I considered writing to him writing to my sister; I received answers from the prisoner; I am perfectly confident that I am acquainted with his hand-writing, but I hesitate to swear to the hand-writing of any man, or to prove it; I have lost the letters I received from him; I left them with my mother; what has been done with them since I do not know; I was present at the post mortem examination of Mrs. Stephens' body at Bellevue Hospital; I recollect seeing Dr. Wood, Dr. Doremus, yourself, Mr. Cushing, and my two sisters there; my sisters were there but a few minutes; when I first saw the body the lid had only been removed a few minutes; I firmly believed, from recognition, the body to have been that of my aunt's; I was in the dead-house two or three times that day, and never afterwards; I made several applications for entrance after that, and was denied; at any time I was there I never put anything on the body, or otherwise interfered with it; neither did any body else to my knowledge.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cushing.—Mr. Stephens was married in Bellturbet; he was not married in the church at Cavan; I was not at the ceremony, but was around the place; I arrived in this country in July last; I stopped the first night at the prisoner's house; I am not a druggist; I have written letters to Stephens from Ireland and from Orange County, in this State; I left Dublin between three and four years ago; I was a grocer at Bellturbet; I commenced as a grocer, and afterwards sold spirits; I was only a short time in business for myself; when I left home my father accompanied me for twenty-two miles, and knew I was coming here; (letter shown witness, dated 27th May, 1858;) this is in my father's handwriting; the day I sailed from Liverpool was the 18th May, and arrived here the 3d July; my relations with my father were always pleasant with one exception; the first persons I saw on arriving here were my sister and the prisoner; I was on board the vessel and they came on board to see me; they went away together in the boat; I left shipboard the next morning, and I went to his house with him; Mr. Knox stayed at the prisoner's house that night; he laid on the carpet, and I, being a stranger, sat in the rocking-chair; we drank all sorts; Wm. Knox and myself did not have a drunken spree that night; persons came into the room, and left; Mrs. Hannah and her daughter, Mr. MacCormack and another young man, who is married to the prisoner's niece, stayed there that night; I believe his name was Bennett; I took my breakfast next morning with the prisoner and that young man; Stephens did not tell me to go to bed that night; I am not aware that I have been indicted for any crime since I have been in this country; I gave myself up to an officer; he was about two blocks from Fourth-avenue, in Third-avenue; I never was arrested; I gave myself up to an officer; I was in a Station-house; I asked the officer to come there with me; the officer had a star under his coat; I have been before Judge Welsh; I think my cousin, Mr. Storey, telegraphed to Mr. Cardwell to come from the country; the charge was attempting to shoot the prisoner; Mr. Cardwell gave bail for me; it was in September; it was I who brought the charge against Stephens for killing my aunt; I have never been arraigned in any Court for that offence; I consider myself held under recognizance to answer when called upon; I have been before a Grand Jury.

Direct resumed—I brought a charge against Mr. Stephens for murdering my aunt, and attempting to ruin my sisters; I gave the charge verbally to the Police magistrate before whom I was first brought; it was fifteen minutes after I attempted to shoot Stephens.

Lucina Stephens examined by District-Attorney—I live at No. 168 East Twenty-seventh-street; I knew Sophia Stephens; I saw her during her last sickness; I went to see her with Mrs. Foley; I saw Mrs. Stephen's little daughter; she was sick that time; she "threw off," (vomited;) her mother was sick in bed; I did not see Fanny Bell; it was in the afternoon; I cannot remember the time.

John Fee examined by the District-Attorney—Resides at No. 146 East Twenty-sixth-street; I had a conversation with Stephens about his wife's health, four or five days before she died, and he thought she was getting better.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cushing—I have known Stephens seven or eight years; he worked at Mr. Stephenson's carriage factory for seven years; his wife and himself lived, as far as I could see, as man and wife should do; I never saw Mrs. Stephens with a black eye.

The Court here adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning. The evidence for the prosecution will be finished to-day. The trial will certainly last during the whole of the present week.

The Austrian Bank Forgery Case.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Russell.

The Chinaman Appo, who murdered Mary Fletcher, in Oliver-street, on the 9th instant, was yesterday arraigned, and pleaded not guilty. His trial was ordered by the Court for Monday next.

Wm. Wallace pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary in the third degree, and was sent to the Penitentiary for one year.

James Tighe pleaded guilty to assault and battery, and was sent to the Penitentiary for one year.

The District Attorney abandoned the cases against Henry Fredenberg, charged with receiving stolen goods, and Henry McGovern, indicted for an attempt at burglary. They were each discharged.

The Austrian Bank forgery case was then taken up. Henry Rohner, though indicted with other parties, was alone placed on trial. Ex-Judge Whiting and Mr. Lawson conducted the prosecution. Messrs. H. L. Clinton and Ex-Judge Stuart appeared for the defence. It will be remembered that on Nov. 11, 1858, the defendant was detected in the act of forging notes on the Bank of Vienna—each for one hundred gulden—twenty-two of which had been worked off from a plate caused to be engraved by the prisoner. The first witness examined was Police Officer Joseph Keefe, who testified that, in his capacity as a detective officer, he received information that there was a suspicious trunk at the house of Dr. Knox, No. 30 Orchard-street. This trunk was delivered to him by Mrs. Knox, and he took it to the head-quarters of the Police, at the corner of Elm and Broome streets, where it was opened in the presence of Rohner and Captain Carpenter, the Deputy-Superintendent. When the trunk was opened, the prisoner claimed the money contained therein—among which were twenty-two of the fraudulent bills of the Bank of Vienna. Deputy Superintendent Carpenter gave similar testimony. Dr. Knox deposed that Rohner had resided with him for about four weeks before the forgery was discovered, and that he had told him (witness) that the trunk belonged to him, and only contained clothing.

Ferdinand Degen, Superintendent of the Department for the manufacture of the genuine bills for the Bank of Vienna, deposed, through an interpreter, that he resided at the Prescott House, having been sent over to this country by the Directors of the Austrian National Bank, and that he landed two months ago. He had been connected with the Austrian Bank in Vienna 36 years. He pronounced all the bills shown him, that were in the possession of the prisoner, to be counterfeits, but acknowledged them to be good imitations.

The trial will probably occupy the greater part of the week.

COMMON PLEAS.—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Daly.

Andrew Fash vs. The Third-avenue Railroad Company.—This action is brought to recover $5,000 damages for a lame shoulder. It seems that upon the track in Third-avenue, and opposite Forty-eighth-street, there occurs a trap in the shape of a hole and a spike. The hole was left by the constructors of the road, and the spike employed to hold the rail in its place is uncovered. On March 9, 1854, plaintiff was driving along this road, and being unaware of the existence of this flaw, drove directly over it in such a manner that the wheel caught, suddenly stopping the team and throwing the driver out of the wagon, breaking his left shoulder.

From this injury he was laid up for three months, and he has now a lameness in his left arm, which he thinks will always continue.

A motion for a non-suit was made to-day, upon the ground that the road had been constructed by and under the superintendence of the Street Commissioner, and that the Corporation was alone responsible for any imperfection in the road. This motion was, however, denied. The case is still on.

W. C. Carpenter, for plaintiff; R. C. Potter, for defendant.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CAUTION.—TO WATCH DEALERS AND JEWELERS.—NEW-YORK, March, 1859.—J. & M. T. LEVITT, London, England, and No. 19 Maiden-lane, New-York, chronometer and watch manufacturers, hereby inform the trade that certain of the plain watches and movements of their own make, bearing their names and that of Morris Tobias, No. 31 Minories, London, imported into this country previously to the establishment of their agency, No. 19 Maiden-lane, under the management of J. H. BRADBURY, have been jeweled in this City in aqua marine stones, contrary to the principles on which their fine movements and first-class watches have heretofore been constructed, such alterations being not alone injurious to the durability of the watches by reason of the softness of the aqua marines, but calculated to impair the faith of purchasers of these goods whose reliance has been uniformly placed on their quality. In order therefore that there may be no mistaking the genuine movements, purchasers will find on examination that all watches and movements finished at their manufactory in London, England, are jeweled in Rubies and Chrysolites only, and for future protection the certificate which accompanies each watch or movement will be countersigned by their sole agent, J. H. BRADBURY.

D. 1858, upon a judgment for $47,436, rendered June 4, 1857, in favor of Richard P. Morgan, plaintiff, and against the Peoria and Oquawka Railroad Company, defendants, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of said Company in and to the Peoria and Oquawka Railroad lying within the Northern District of Illinois, including the Oquawka branch of said Railroad, in the county of Henderson, and the railroad bridge of said defendant across the Illinois River at or opposite Peoria, and all the right, title and interest of the said Company in and to all side-tracks, dépôt-grounds, right of way, machine-shops, engine-houses and turn-tables, and all the other appurtenances thereunto belonging or used therewith, including the rolling stock of said road, consisting of passenger-cars and freight-cars, hand-cars and locomotive engines, which I shall expose to sale at the Court-house door, in the city of Peoria, at the hour of noon on the 26th day of March next.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship City of Washington, from Liverpool on the 2d inst., with four days' later European advices, is now about due at this port. The Sandy Hook Telegraph reported "no signs" at 11 o'clock last night.

By way of Havana, we have details of news from Vera Cruz to Feb. 27. The city was in a state of siege; all ingress and egress landwards were forbidden; and large numbers of those who had not previously fled had taken refuge in the foreign consulates. Much consternation was caused by a rumor that an insurrection in favor of the Church had broken out in Guerrero, detaining General ALVAREZ from the relief of Vera Cruz. A movement in the Church interest had also been discovered in Merida, Yucatan, but had been promptly suppressed.

By the arrival of the steamship Philadelphia we have Havana files to March 9. The news is without interest. There were said to be more than a thousand strangers in Havana. The health of the city was excellent.

The Prensa de la Habana announces that the concession to lay the submarine telegraph between Cuba and Key West, will probably be made to the Company of D. ANTONIO M. MORA, of Havana.

Porto Rico advices to Feb. 28 have come to hand. The sugar crop, owing to the unfavorable weather, threatened to be 30 ℔ cent. less than it reached last year. The sailors rescued from the wrecked slaver were still in confinement, while the negroes were about to be leased to the planters as emancipados. No clue had been found to the name or origin of the schooner.

The Overland California Mail, which left San Francisco on the 18th ult., arrived at St. Louis yesterday. The California news is not so late as that received by steamer. At the Apache Pass, several tribes of Indians were assembled for the purpose of making treaties. The Mail Company is still having trouble with the Indians. The Camanches had stolen eighty mules, and the Company were supplying their stations with Sharpe's rifles and ammunition, as a measure of protection. Mr. JOHN HALL, the conductor of the Neosha and Albuquerque Mail, which was destroyed by the Camanches in November last, has been a prisoner among them ever since until some time last week, when he succeeded in making his escape, and reached St. Louis on Sunday.

The case of Mr. SICKLES was taken up by the Grand Jury at Washington yesterday, and twelve witnesses were examined. It is probable that a bill will be returned to-day, and that the trial will be put down for Monday next. Mr. BUTTERWORTH, who was the principal witness of the fact of the shooting of Mr. KEY, and who was examined before the preliminary Court, was not yesterday called upon, or even subpœnaed, by the Grand Jury.

The reported arrival of the Curacoa frigate with Lord LYONS, the new British Ambassador on board, proved untrue. It has been stated by some of the evening papers, that the Curacoa was ordered to the Chesapeake, but no intimations of the kind were given in the English papers. It was simply announced that she had left on the 22d ult. for the United States. The European Times stated that her destination was New-York.

In the State Senate, yesterday, a concurrent resolution was introduced to amend the Constitution, so as to allow a loan of $3,500,000 for the completion of the canals in 1861. During the evening session Mr. ELY introduced two bills—one to authorize an official report in full of each day's legislative proceedings in the State paper, and providing for remuneration; and the other to change the law of libel, so as to provide that no publication in reference to an office-holder shall be deemed a libel, and that any assault upon an editor for such publication shall not be illegal, unless resulting in death. In the Assembly, a favorable report was made on the proposition to abolish the property qualification on the Constitution. A bill was introduced to repeal the law authorizing the State to pay her share towards a national monument in Independence-square, Philadelphia. After some further business, and the Quarantine bills being made the special order for to-morrow evening, the death of Mr. BAKER, member from Cattaraugus, was announced, and the Assembly adjourned, after the usual proceedings.

A mass meeting was held last night in Tammany Hall for the purpose of giving expression to the feeling with which the New-York Democracy regard the proposed annexation of Cuba. The meeting was a large one, and comprised most of the leading federal officeholders of the City. Ex-Mayor MICKLE presided, ISAAC V. FOWLER read the resolutions, and Senator BROWN, of Mississippi, the Hon. JOHN COCHRANE, of New-York and Capt. RYNDERS, made the speeches. Senator BROWN assumed ultra pro-slavery ground, Mr. COCHRANE argued the question mainly from a commercial point of view, and Capt. RYNDERS expressed himself virtually in favor of our taking possession of Cuba by force, if it cannot be obtained otherwise—which was also Senator BROWN's position.

A communication from the Comptroller, setting forth that a heavy overcharge had been made by the Assessors and Collectors in the Assessment list for paving Madison-avenue, from Twenty-third to Forty-second-street, with Belgian pavement, was sent to the Board of Aldermen last evening. It was referred. Resolutions directing that the actual opening of Reade-street take place on May 1st next, and that the actual opening of the Second-avenue, from One Hundred and Twenty-third-street to the Harlem River, take place forthwith, were adopted. The Board resolved that the fountain in the City Hall Park should be closed, and one constructed in Tompkins-square.

A large amount of routine business was transacted in the Board of Councilmen last evening. The Comptroller sent in two communications; one renewing his call for additional clerical aid, and the other in reference to the removal of night soil. Petitions were presented for a trial of iron pavement in Wall-street, for a railroad through East Broadway, Avenue D, &c. Both were referred to the Committee on Streets.

The Board of Supervisors held a short session yesterday, referred a number of resolutions and petitions of little importance to the standing Committees, and adjourned to Monday next.

The Chamber of Commerce met, yesterday, and passed resolutions requesting the Legislature to restore to the Appropriation Bill the $10,000 for the use of the Harbor Commissioners, which had been stricken out, and also asking that the Pilot Commissioners be authorized to act as heretofore with reference to the protection of the harbor from illegal encroachments.

The Austrian Bank Forgery case, in which Henry Rohner is charged with causing to be engraved, in this City, a plate, from which counterfeit impressions of the Hundred Gulden Notes of the Bank of Vienna have been taken, was commenced yesterday in the Court of General Sessions, and will probably last some days. The principal witness yesterday was FERDINAND DEGEN, the Superintendent of the printing of notes for the Austrian National Bank, who has been sent over to this country by the Directors of that Bank for the purpose of testifying to the forgery.

The trial of JAMES STEPHENS for the murder of his wife, was continued yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. The evidence for the prosecution was not exhausted, and will be resumed to-day.

The sales of Cotton, yesterday, were limited to 1,500 bales. Prices were sustained. Flour, Wheat, and Corn were in good request at generally firmer rates. Groceries were quiet. Naval Stores were freely sought after at uniform quotations. Pork and Cut Meats were depressed. Lard, Beef, and Rice attracted more attention. Whisky was heavy and lower. The freight engagements were moderate.

France and England in Italy.

If the Emperor NAPOLEON III. were a sovereign of the calibre of LOUIS PHILIPPE, or if his foreign policy were governed like that of his predecessor, by the petty expediences of the hour, by an exclusive tenderness for this or that particular class of his own subjects, or by an instinctive subserviency to the wishes of his leading ally of the moment, we might reasonably enough expect a pacific solution of the Italian question to be the immediate result of Lord COWLEY's mission to Vienna, as we assuredly should never have seen the outbreak of the great Crimean war. But the leading peculiarity of the public character of NAPOLEON III. would seem to be his devotion to large and comprehensive ideas of foreign policy. Whatever mistakes he may have committed or permitted in the domestic administration of France, he has managed the external relations of the Empire with a single and most successful regard to the permanent interests of his people. He has never suffered himself to be diverted from the pursuit of great objects, vital to the influence of France, by any anxiety as to the momentary effect of his resolute course upon public feeling either at home or abroad. When the revelations of Sir HAMILTON SEYMOUR and the conduct of Prince MENSCHIKOFF had made it perfectly plain that France must either seize the leadership of Europe or abandon the East to Russia and the West to England, NAPOLEON never hesitated for an instant. The Russian war was at first excessively unpopular in France. It was not even really popular in England until it had been fairly commenced. The double-minded machinations of Austria, the scarce-concealed hostility of Prussia, the ancient sympathy of all English Governments with both of these States, and even with Russia herself, made the position of France most perilous, and might well have deterred a less imperial brain and will from entering upon a crusade at once so decisive and so dangerous. NAPOLEON III. chose his part, and did his work, with an emphasis and to a triumphant result, which all the world now readily acknowledges.

The London journalists who dwell now with so rancorous an earnestness upon the difficulties which menace the Emperor in his present dealings with Austria, have most conveniently forgotten that but five years ago difficulties far more numerous and formidable hedged his onward march to the ramparts of Sebastopol; that Russia in Turkey was never so thoroughly isolated as is Austria in Italy from the good will and the respect of Europe, and that there is no sovereign State ready to interpose between Paris and Milan the barricades which the Courts of Germany threw up so eagerly between Paris and Warsaw.

Still more plainly and still more conveniently have the same journalists forgotten the eagerness with which England herself, not three years since, pressed upon Europe precisely the policy which NAPOLEON III. has now boldly undertaken to carry out, and how she clamored with all the unruly vehemence of a constitutional Senate, and an unfettered Press, for precisely the measures which French diplomacy is now urging upon Austrian selfishness, stubbornness and pride.

The English papers, with a few honorable exceptions, and English statesmen with more or less openness, are now charging it upon the French Emperor that he has "willfully disturbed the peace of the world and excited alarm throughout Europe, merely that he may keep himself well up to the expectations o his people, and seem at least to be on the point of doing great things." An accusation more silly and more wicked has rarely been leveled at a great sovereign, by a people indebted to him, as are the English to NAPOLEON III., for the most important international offices of loyalty and good faith in a trying crisis of their national history. To us in America, who are gravely interested in the prospects of peace and war abroad, it is a matter of the first importance to understand how baseless this accusation is. For if NAPOLEON's recent movements are but a feint of egotistical jugglery, provoked by no real emergency in the foreign relations of the State, then we may fairly expect to see him recede from the position he has taken up, and eat, as it were, his own words. If, on the contrary, France is now speaking to Austria with the voice of history and of Europe, then we may be sure that no slight or inadequate concessions, wrung from the Ministers of FRANCIS JOSEPH, can really avert a catastrophe which certain classes in France, and almost all men in England, would seem to fear more than the loss of national honor, more than the grossest present inconsistency, more than the infinite multiplication of perils for future years. The Italian question, so far from being the creation of NAPOLEON III., to serve his own purposes, is a legacy of trouble entailed upon him by the reckless negotiators of Vienna in 1815; by the reactionary French Governments of the Restoration and of July, and by the vacillating policy of England throughout the last thirty years.

The treaties of 1815, of which Lord PALMERSTON and other leaders of the English political world now speak with bated breath, as of something too sacred to be lightly whispered of, and for the maintenance of which the London Times contends that no sacrifice is too great, have been for years the jest and the shame of Europe. On the 6th of May, 1856, the London Times, in expatiating upon the wisdom of the Emperor NAPOLEON III., and the excellence of the Treaty of Paris, then just concluded, said, with perfect truth and perilous honesty, that those > "who would compare the treaties just executed at Paris with those made at Vienna, would be startled to find how many things England, victorious after her long and desolating war with NAPOLEON I., was obliged to forego in 1815; and these not matters of secondary importance, but, as subsequent events have shown, essential to the peace of Europe."

The treaties of Vienna were indeed concluded in haste, to be repented of at leisure. Before the return of NAPOLEON from Elba, the negotiations of the great Powers had nearly issued in an open rupture between England and her Continental allies; and the treaties which were executed after Waterloo were adopted without any serious conviction on the part of any of the contracting powers that they would do more for the "settlement of Europe" than simply put an end to a conflict which no State was either able or willing to prolong. They were drawn up rather with a view to the immediate convenience of a few reigning dynasties than to the permanent wants and national tendencies of Europe. "Their results," as the London Times went on, quite in the vein of M. DE LA GUERONNIERE, to show, "have since been seen in the Polish Revolution of 1830; in the destruction of the Republic of Cracow by Russia, Prussia and Austria in 1847; and in many other ways in which the despotic spirit which it was the wish and the duty of England to have controlled has burst through the bulwarks that were raised against its encroachments." They were seen too, we may add, in the preponderance which NICHOLAS I. gradually acquired during his reign for the influence of Russia on the Continent; in the Spanish troubles, which provoked the Quadruple Treaty of 1835 for the "settlement" of the throne of ISABELLA II.; in the Miguelite war, which urged England to interfere with the strong hand in Portuguese politics in 1847. They have never ceased for a moment to be seen in the affairs of Italy.

In 1847, when PIUS IX., for a few months seemed about to lead Italy onward, beneath the banner of the Cross, to independence, England applauded the threatened ruin of these treaties of 1815, with all her voices. It was upon France, and the Guizot Ministry of LOUIS PHILIPPE, that Austria then relied to aid her in humbling the papacy, maintaining the "order of 1815," and perpetuating the enslavement of Italy. The London Times then heaped abuse upon France for her "inglorious inertness;" spoke of Sardinia as the "ancient ally whom Great Britain should defend against Austria;" and plainly told the Cabinet of Vienna that England would not recognize "the right of Austria to retain in subjection, by armed force, States whose Constitutions had been modified by the course of events." For England, in 1847, the treaties of 1815 were come to an end; broken, as the Queen solemnly protested in her speech, by the "destruction of the independence of Cracow;" and "shaken to pieces," as Sir ROBERT PEEL put it, by the bad faith of Austria and her accomplices.

In 1856, on the 7th of May, the ink being hardly dry upon the signatures to the Peace of the great Powers, the London Times revived the cry of 1847, and urged the policy which NAPOLEON III. has now undertaken to enforce. Nothing has since occurred to rob the picture which the Times then drew of the Italian question of its color or its truth; and it may well be reproduced to-day as the best possible answer to the charge that NAPOLEON III. is wantonly trifling with the welfare of mankind. Of Rome the Times said:

> "A feeble prelate placed on a throne which he is unfitted to fill, nominally rules this unhappy region. He cannot leave his palace without hearing the dismal cries and looking on the moody faces of those over whom it is asserted that God has given him a double charge. The Northern provinces of his dominions are occupied by Austrian troops. The people of the Legations have recollections of better times and juster laws, for even conscriptions which hurried them to fight a great conqueror's battles everywhere from Lisbon to Moscow, were not so grievous as the deadly oppression under which they now groan. They are imprisoned without trial by an Austrian police. They are shot without crime by Austrian courts-martial. The privacy and honor of their homes are at the mercy of Austrian commandants. They suffer the strangely combined evils of despotism and anarchy."

But Rome was not all Italy, as it would now appear to be in the columns of the English organ. "Sicily, ruined and oppressed," asked "for a deliverer;"

> "The Milanese and Venetian Provinces, though part of the Austrian Empire," said the Times, "we must not be induced by any false delicacy to sever from Italy. All the evils which foreign rule brings with it, insolence on the one side, bitter heart-burnings on the other, wanton and wholesale arrests, delations, forfeitures, long and unjust imprisonments, sentences out of proportion to offences, prevail in the regions subjected to the German sway. Indeed, Italy cries aloud to all men who have eyes, hearts and imaginations, to see and feel for the wrongs of humanity. Compared with this enduring and organized oppression, what are the sufferings of the Rayah from the outbursts of Mussulman violence? But the remonstrances of Lord Clarendon, the representations of the Sardinian Plenipotentiary, the universal feeling of England, and the good-will of the French Government, give hopes at last that this reign of evil is about to be brought to a close. It remains to take active measures for doing what the whole world feels must be done."

These active measures the Emperor of the French, after waiting three years to see England move in this matter, is now taking. He repudiates the policy spurned by England in 1847; he adopts the policy urged by England in 1856. With the moral weight of forty years of history in his favor, it would certainly seem to be next to impossible for him, whose nearest interests, as well personal and dynastic as national, are involved in the real settlement of Italian affairs, to accept any merely temporary or inadequate solution of the questions involved.

THE SANITARY CONDITION OF THE CITY.—At this healthiest season of the year, when there has been no sudden increase of our population by immigration, the last three reports of our City Inspector have exhibited an alarming increase in the bills of mortality. Last week the increase was ten deaths over the week previous, and the week before the increase was twenty. As there are no epidemics existing to which this increase of mortality can be attributed, there can be no doubt that the unhealthiness of the City, as indicated by the returns of the City Inspector is owing to the scandalous condition of the streets. Our lanes, alleys, wharves and public thoroughfares are now encumbered by three months' accumulations of filth, and as the weather is unusually warm for the season, the malaria engendered by the heaps of festering filth is doing its deadly work on the wretched denizens of those localities where a constant circulation of pure air cannot be obtained.

For this most deplorable and disgraceful state of affairs the Mayor and Board of Aldermen are directly responsible. Between them they have conspired to keep the City without any legal head of the City Inspector's Department, to which the duty belongs of seeing that the contractors for street-cleaning do their duty. Under our last Charter, the head of the street-cleaning department held his office wholly independent of the Mayor and Aldermen, and defied their authority. There was no way by which he could be reached, except by impeachment, and one of the chief motives for giving the City a new Charter was to place this officer directly under the control of the Mayor and Aldermen, that they might remove him when he neglected his duties, and be responsible for his conduct. The result is that we have now no City Inspector at all, and there is no person who has the right to attend to the duties of the office. The Mayor has nominated a man for the place whom the Aldermen will not confirm, and as his Honor chooses to select this special occasion for exhibiting his firmness of purpose, the old incumbent holds on to the place, and the City suffers.

Obstinacy is a very valuable virtue in certain cases, and private individuals have an undoubted right to exercise it to any extent when their own private interests only are at stake. But public officers have no right to exercise it at the expense of the public welfare. The Mayor and the Aldermen should adopt some measures for a compromise, or the Board of Health should at once take the matter in hand, and have the streets attended to, or we shall very soon be suffering from an epidemic.

Tammany on Cuba.

When the ears of quiet citizens are deafened by the repeated discharge of a great gun in the Park, and a band "indifferent good" discourses music "indifferent bad" from the balcony of the Tammany Hotel, we believe it is the proper and conventional thing for the morning papers to state that "the old Wigwam was in its glory last night." We, therefore, do not hesitate to employ the phrase with reference to a meeting of "the Democracy" held last evening at Tammany Hall, to consider the question of the acquisition of Cuba; nor have we the smallest desire to dispute with the wigwam in question any of the glory which it may have acquired by the demonstration. The public are so accustomed to hear that "dead issues" have been anatomized at Tammany to amuse the "unterrified," and to serve the political purposes of the Sachems, that a meeting to consider subjects on which discussion can throw no new light, and to agitate measures beyond the power of the strongest galvanic batteries to revive, need excite no special astonishment, even when heralded with a hundred guns, a barrel bonfire, three hand-organs, and an army of shouting boys.

A convention for the purpose of promoting the acquisition of Cuba under President BUCHANAN, has just about as much practical importance as a council of war to determine the length of CHARLEMAGNE's spurs, or a Jesuit Congress to plan the recovery of MARTIN LUTHER from the heterodoxy of his ways. It would seem that the leaders of the Democracy do not take a greatly different view of the case. For Mr. SLIDELL, who fought so stoutly to the last over his bantling in the Senate was not present to tell the story of its death and burial; and Senator BENJAMIN likewise failed to lend his silvery eloquence to the congenial task of pointing out the road to Cuba, and of leading the way therein for the enthusiastic multitude assembled to await his summons. In the stead of these illustrious chieftains came plain Senator BROWN, of Mississippi, who resembles them no more than FANNY ELLSLER resembles the mother of the GRACCHI; but who vomited the usual proportion of fillibustering fire-works and Democratic ribbon, to the great delight of the "sovereigns." The specific points of Senator BROWN's harangue were few and simple.

When he remarked that he was in favor of acquiring Cuba because she would come in as a Slave State, he spoke candidly. When he said that Slavery was sanctioned by the Divine law, he was merely impertinent to the question; and when he went so far as to declare that the Democratic party would rush to the polls in 1860 upon the direct issue of the immediate possession of Cuba, he twaddled almost sublimely. And he indulged himself in a little of that sort of logic which, how effective soever it may be in the close quarters of Mississippi, is apt to miss in the long range of these latitudes, when he stated that "of the three courses for the acquisition of Cuba, that by purchase is the most honorable, that by conquest the most certain, and that by fillibustering the most probable." He will hardly find the good people of Gotham ready to indorse this curious position, and to assume that of three ways to an end the United States will inevitably select that one which is neither honorable nor safe.

Tammany has exploded its powder, burnt up its tar-barrels, blown off its music. These are past praying for. But it can at least reconsider its position, and in some soberer moment of the future will doubtless do so with emphasis, if not with delight.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE DEMOCRACY.—A letter from Washington represents Mr. BUCHANAN as denouncing the Democratic Party in unmeasured terms. He accuses them of having deserted him and left him utterly without the means of carrying on the government. The reproach is not wholly undeserved. Judged by the standard of public duty the Democratic Party has not met the responsibility resting upon it. Being in absolute possession of the Government, it was bound to protect the public welfare:—and no consideration of party interest, still less any motive of factious discontent, could release it from this obligation.

Upon party grounds, however, the matter rests on a different footing. Mr. BUCHANAN must be aware that he has given his party every possible provocation for leaving him to his own resources. He has evinced, from the moment of his accession the most sovereign disregard of its principles, its traditions and its interests. He has insulted and estranged all its recognized leaders, turned its platform bottom upwards, and devoted himself to the task of building up a personal faction devoted to himself instead of the party. Such a course deserves but one reward and can have but one result. Any party will in self-defence punish such interested treachery, perpetrated by those whom it has raised to power. The misfortune is that this penalty should be imposed at the expense of the country. For the sake of reaching the President, the Democratic majority in Congress has exposed the whole country to the hazards of disgrace and the certainty of very great inconvenience. How these evils are to be averted remains to be seen.

AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION.—Three propositions are before the Legislature for amending the Constitution. One proposes to reorganize the Court of Appeals, reducing the number of judges from eight to six, and causing them all to be elected by general ticket, instead of taking part from the Supreme Court Bench. This is practical, sensible and necessary. The second and third propose to extend the electoral suffrage,—one by permitting negroes to vote without the property qualification at present required; and the other by permitting women to vote without any qualifications at all. It is not probable that either of these latter propositions will pass the Legislature. If they do, and are submitted to the popular vote, they are not likely to be adopted there.

THE BUSINESS SEASON.—Our advertising friends show an eager desire to monopolize our columns, which is somewhat embarrassing, though not positively unpleasant. They are encroaching upon our reading space to a disastrous extent. We always expect a freshet in the Spring, but it comes this year at least a month earlier than usual. If the waters rise much higher we shall be compelled to resort to some measures, more or less violent, for relief. The fact is, the whole business of the country opens this year with signs of marked and vigorous prosperity. It is possible that these appearances may be, as the Tribune insists they are delusive,—but thus far, certainly,—taking our advertising columns as an index,—they have a remarkably solid and substantial look.

Changes in the English Laws of Property.

There is probably nothing which exercises so much influence, not only upon the political but social condition of England as her property laws,—the manner in which the landed estates are held, settled, conveyed and transmitted. Nothing does so much to keep things fixed—to preserve "the framework of society" from destruction, and the "floodgates" from being opened, and enable "the Queen's Government to be carried on." Nothing raises so great a hubbub as any attempt to touch them. Upon no subject has there been such scandalously partial legislation. The House of Commons, in its fairest, most Christian and most liberal moods, is a very tiger of ferocious impatience when any enterprising Radical raises a point which directly or indirectly touches "gentlemen's titles." And no wonder; for with the existing laws of real property, the existing Constitution in Church and State is inseparably bound up. The abolition of primogeniture would cause the aristocracy to disappear from around the throne, like a morning mist. Even greatly increased facilities for selling and disposing of land, the mere simplification of conveyancing would act as a powerful leveler. Mr. BRIGHT may talk in vain of aristocratic privileges and of the sovereign virtues of the ballot-box as long as eldest sons can entrench themselves behind the law of descent, and as long as personal property besides its greater precariousness has to bear the burden of unequal taxation and greater liability.

The present Solicitor-General has introduced into the House of Commons, with marked approval, a measure which contemplates a curious change in the English system of conveyancing, which, while perfectly satisfactory to landholders, is, in so far as it facilitates immensely the transfer of real estate, curiously enough decidedly radical in its tendency. To estimate its importance, it is necessary to know what changes it proposes to effect, though it is difficult to give the American public, accustomed as it is to seeing land bought and sold with almost as much ease and facility as furniture or cattle, an idea of the difficulties which surround the sale of an English estate, whether it be a town lot or a lordly domain.

In the first place, there is no registry of deeds. Several attempts have been made at various times to establish one, but unsuccessfully. The country gentlemen, and even the law lords, notably Lord ST. LEONARDS, the greatest real property lawyer of his day, have always bitterly opposed it on two grounds—the difficulty of making a beginning, and the unpleasantness of having all one's family affairs known to everybody who chooses to inspect the registrar's books. This last objection has a force in England which it would not have here, even if we were as bashful and secretive as the English, inasmuch as most of the property of wealthy families consists of landed estates. On the marriage of the eldest son, these are always "settled" by an elaborate deed, making provision for his wife, his issue, his mother, his brothers and sisters, and so on. Anybody who can get a glimpse of it can always tell the precise amount of means every member of the family will, in all probability, possess for two generations. Trade or speculations would not there, as here, disturb his calculations.

Next there is the trouble and expense of searches. When one wants to sell his property he must submit his deeds for forty, sixty or a hundred years back to the inspection of the attorney of the purchaser. Every one of these deeds is probably a "settlement" by which innumerable collateral interests are created. The attorney makes an abstract thereof, and submits it for the advice of a conveyancing barrister. These conveyancers, or at least the leading ones, whose opinion is most sought after, are overwhelmed with business, and "the opinion" is probably not forthcoming for months—so that the search of a single title hardly ever takes less than three months, and generally a year. If it is desired to raise money on mortgage the same process has to be gone through, and it is as necessary in the sale or mortgage of half an acre as of half a county. If it were intended to invent a plan which should prevent real property changing hands, except on rare occasions and in great extremities, it would be hard to devise a better one.

The Solicitor-General proposes to remedy all this by establishing a "Landed Estates Court" in London, on the plan of the one now in operation in Dublin, the successor of the Incumbered Estates Court which did so much good in 1849-'50. Any landholder who wishes to make his title clear can come in and petition this Court, which will thereupon advertise for a certain period, hear all rival claimants and incumbrancers, examine his deeds and after the lapse of fifteen months give him an absolute, indefeasible title, good against the world. This title will be registered, just as the ownership of a ship is, so that a purchaser or mortgagee will only have to look in the court-book to satisfy himself. Every change of ownership will be indicated by a change of name in the registry, and every mortgagee can save his rights, or rather make them known by attaching thereto a caveat. Since the abolition of feudal tenures, no so great change has occurred in the real property law of England. It is one step more, and a huge one, towards a state of things on which all true democracy must of necessity be based—the close assimilation, in incidents, of modes of transfer of real and personal property. Its importance in this point of view it is difficult to estimate, and perhaps the most remarkable thing about it is the enthusiasm with which the landholders hail it.

Amusements.

NIBLO'S THEATRE.—Mr. VAN AMBURG's celebrated performing animals were exhibited here last night for the first time this season. The house was much fuller than usual, and we may therefore reasonably conclude that the "varmints" draw. Their exhibition by the gentleman who enjoys their snarls is evidently a desperate and exciting thing. People fond of showy excitements will no doubt avail themselves of the present opportunity.

MATINEE.—Messrs. MASON and THOMAS will give their Fourth Matinée to-day at Dodworth's Hall, assisted by Mrs. MOZART and Mr. J. S. JAMESON. Beethoven's Sonate in C minor, and Schuberth's Quartette in E flat, major are the principal attractions.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE ELECTION.—The returns from New-Hampshire give the following summary of the result of the election in that State: The Republican vote of this State, so far as heard from, 35,721; Democratic, 31,926; making GOODWIN's majority 3,795. The whole vote of the State is about 60,000. The vote of last year was, HAILE, 36,333, CATE, 31,591; HAILE's majority 4,732. There are 13 towns to hear from, which, taking the vote of last year as indicative, will give GOODWIN 3,418 majority. The Congressional returns, so far as heard from, are, in the First District, the majority for Mr. MARSTON will be about 750; in the Second District, for Mr. TAPPAN, 1,636; in the Third, for Mr. EDWARDS, from 1,000 to 1,200. The Republicans have chosen eight, and possibly nine, out of the twelve State Senators. They also count upon 74 majority in the House of Representatives.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

FIRST STEAMER TO ALBANY—MOVEMENT [illegible].—The steamer New-World, Capt. ST. [illegible] left New-York last evening, at 6 o'clock, for [illegible] it being her first trip for the season. She had a [illegible] quantity of freight and some one hundred passengers, which, for the first trip, and upon so short a notice, was considered a large number. This is a [illegible] earlier than she made the first trip last Spring, being on the 19th of March. The [illegible] Erastus Corning (propeller) on Sunday night [illegible] the fact that the river is now navigable, [illegible] will be little further obstruction to the steamers. Among the passengers was a portion of Company [illegible], Second Artillery, from Fort Hamilton, consisting of fifty-four men and three officers, who have been suddenly ordered to proceed to Plattsburg. They are commanded by Capt. HARVEY A. ALLEN, who is accompanied by First Lieutenant THOS. VINCENT and Second Lieutenant SAINT CLAIR DEARING. The order from the War Department arrived at midnight on Sunday, to proceed forthwith. The movement is supposed to have reference to the protection of the United States Government Reservation against squatters, who have heretofore given some trouble. Lieutenant DEARING has just returned from a three years' campaign in Oregon. The company received the compliment of a salute of eight guns when they left Fort Hamilton, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The steamer North America, Capt. TAMPER, also started on her third trip to Rondout last evening at 5 P. M., she having made two trips to Newburg. She had a very good load of freight, which has steadily increased since the first trip. The passenger barge Republic, for Poughkeepsie, also went up for the first time, carrying a full freight and about thirty passengers.

FUNERAL OF SIGNOR LA MANNA.—The funeral of Signor LA MANNA, the well-known musical director, took place yesterday, from his residence in Brooklyn. DOMENICO LA MANNA was born in Palermo, Sicily, and received his musical education in the College Del Buon Pastore, amongst the pupils of which, by his talents and industry, he occupied a prominent position. He arrived in this country in 1837, with twenty-one other Italian musicians, in the United States man-of-war John Adams. He first played at PALMO's Café de l'Indépendance, at the corner of Reade-street and Broadway. Afterwards PALMO built the "Apollo," in Broadway, near Canal-street, for the purpose of giving marionette performances, CHARLES PAZZAGLIA being leader of the orchestra, and LA MANNA second leader. Afterwards he occupied the post of second leader in Palmo's Opera-House, Chambers-street, Signor RAPETTI being the conductor. Later he has been leader at Niblo's, Wallack's, and the Broadway Theatre, in New-York, and lastly at the Washington and the Montreal Theatres. Within the last year he has been gradually declining, until he died on Saturday morning, at 7 o'clock, at the age of 42 years, 10 months, and 2 days. He leaves a wife and three children, the oldest, a boy, being 13 years old. He was a good musician, devoted husband, fond father, and sincere friend. The funeral service (Episcopalian) was read by a French minister. There were present many members of the Dramatic Fund, Musical Fund, Musical Protection Association, as well as personal and Masonic friends. He was buried in Greenwood Cemetery.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—A special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday, Mr. PERIT in the Chair. The movement in the Legislature striking from the appropriation bill $10,000 for the Harbor Commissioners was the cause of the meeting. Such action being deemed equivalent to abolishing the Commission, and leaving the Harbor to take care of itself, the object of the meeting was to express the views of the merchants of New-York upon that subject. The President explained the origin of the Commission, and the service it had rendered to the City and its commerce in preventing encroachments upon the harbor, by the illegal extension of wharves and piers. Mr. A. A. LOW presented a preamble and resolutions, asking the Legislature that the sum of $10,000, which had been struck out of the annual appropriation bill by the Assembly, be restored, and that the Pilot Commissioners act as they had done heretofore with regard to the harbor encroachments. Mr. BLUNT stated that the Pilot Commissioners were now in arrears to their employees $10,000 for the past year. The preambles and resolutions were adopted and ordered to be transmitted to Albany for action of the Legislature. The Chamber then adjourned.

DISGUSTING CONDITION OF THE POTTER'S FIELD ON FOURTH-AVENUE.—The work of removing the dead bodies from the Potter's Field bounded by the Fourth and Lexington avenues, Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets, was commenced under the direction of the City authorities last year. During the Summer it was deemed imprudent to disinter those bodies, numbering several thousands, which still remained there; indeed, many residents in the vicinity, among them President KING, of Columbia College, complained that the further prosecution of the work during the warm weather was a nuisance, and it was abated until the cold weather should set in. During the whole Winter, however, nothing has been done there. Meantime the thin layer of earth which covered some hundred half-decayed coffins has fallen away, and the bodies are exposed to view. Crowds of urchins assemble there daily and play with the bones of the dead; troops of hungry dogs prowl about the grounds and carry off skulls and detached parts of human bodies. The spectacle is a most disgusting one, and calls for the immediate attention of the authorities.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING—ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—About 9½ o'clock yesterday morning, SAMUEL MCCARTNEY, (tailor,) residing on the corner of the Bowery and Rivington-street, attempted to commit suicide by jumping from the Hamilton-avenue ferry-boat Transit, (forward of the wheels,) when about midway the river. He actually passed under the wheels without receiving any injury. Mr. JOHN BALFAUR, deck-hand on the above steamer, immediately launched the life boat, and after a great deal of difficulty succeeded in saving him. When rescued it was found that the cause for this attempt upon his life was delirium tremens, he having had some domestic difficulties which occasioned his resort to strong drink to drown care. He was taken in charge by the Harbor Police and sent to the Hospital for medical aid.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST THE HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD.—Mr. GEO. A. BARNEY, who does business at No. 40 Hudson-street, appeared yesterday before the Committee on Railroads, of the Board of Councilmen, and stated that the Hudson River Railroad Company had recently laid a new turn-out between Reade and Duane-streets for the use of an Express Company which runs cars over their road, and that the carts which are continually accumulating at that point obstruct the sidewalk and interfere seriously with business. On behalf the merchants in that vicinity, he asked the Committee to take steps towards abating the nuisance.

WONDERFUL ESCAPE.—Mr. WM. SKELLY, who resides in Forty-ninth-street, on Sunday afternoon attended the funeral of a friend. On reaching home the driver, at his invitation, went into the house for a few moments, leaving one of Mr. SKELLY's little boys standing on the steps of the carriage. The horses took fright at something and immediately commenced running at a furious rate. The boy had not time or presence of mind to jump off, but managed to get into the carriage. After running several blocks the horses brought the carriage into collision with a lumber-waggon. The lighter vehicle was utterly demolished, but the boy, strange to relate, escaped unharmed.

GANG OF BURGLARS BROKEN UP.—A desperate gang of young burglars—the oldest not over twenty—have until lately, been driving a thriving business in the Seventh Ward. Within a few days six have been arrested, and are now awaiting trial. At an early hour yesterday morning, DANIEL DRISCOLL, the last one of the gang, was captured in the house of Mr. DANIEL ELSTON, No. 268 Cherry-street, which he had entered for the purpose of robbery. He was locked up by Justice STEERS to await trial with his late confederates. They called themselves the "Seven leagued boots."

THE HASKIN LIBEL CASE.—Judge ROBERTSON, County Judge of Westchester County, has decided that the trial, in the case of the alleged libel upon the Hon. J. B. HASKIN, published in the Herald, must proceed before him in Westchester County. He has, therefore, issued an order directing the defendant to appear and plead before him this morning. Mr. GALBRAITH, on behalf of the defendant, presented a protest against the decision, and respectfully refused to appear. Mr. HASKIN asked the Court to call upon the defendant to plead at once, and, in case of failure to do so, to declare the recognizances forfeited.

AN IMPOSTER ARRESTED.—A German, giving his name as DAVID STEPHEINBAGER, was detected yesterday, imposing upon citizens in the upper part of the City, by soliciting money under pretense that he wished it to aid him in burying his wife whom he alleged had just died of ship fever. A person, suspecting that he was an imposter, followed him and was not long in detecting the imposition. The base imposter was taken before Justice KELLY and locked up.

PROBABLE SUICIDE OF "BOSS HARRINGTON."—WILLIAM HARRINGTON, aged 55 years, well known as a pugilist in this City, disappeared from his house nearly six weeks since, and no tidings have been received of him. He remarked to his wife previous to his disappearance that unless he could keep from drinking liquor, he would commit suicide by drowning, but the threat was supposed at the time to be a mere drunken jest; but it is thought now that he carried his threat into effect. He has left a family.

ALLEGED PETTY SWINDLE BY A BROKER.—Mr. JOSEPH MOORE, doing business at No. 30 Bowery, yesterday made a complaint before Justice OSBORN, charging JOSEPH F. PERRY, a Wall-street broker, with swindling him out of $20, by giving him a worthless check upon the Bowery Bank. A warrant was issued for the broker's arrest, and the magistrate committed him for trial.

THE FIREMEN'S BENEFIT.—The lecture announced for last evening by Hon. J. B. SCOLES, at the Cooper Institute, was postponed on account of the weather, and for want of an audience.

AFFAIRS IN CHILI.

The Revolutionary Movements in Chili—The Men Engaged in Them—American Interests—Shipping and Commercial News, &c., &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

VALPARAISO, Monday, Jan. 24, 1859.

I am sorry to write still of political disturbances; and there is no knowing when or what the end will be. I informed you two weeks ago of the outbreak in Atacama. That is not quelled. The report that Caldera had been sacked was exaggerated. Fourteen thousand dollars belonging to the town treasury were seized by the rebels, and $5,000 belonging to the Custom-house. But private property was respected.

Another outbreak has occurred in Talca, which is [illegible] from the capital, and it is not yet put down. The province of Concepcion, usually the focus of revolution, is still quiet.

All the country was declared in a state of siege; and last week Congress, being called to an extra session, at once voted down the law proposed by the Governor conferring extraordinary powers for the term of one year, in order to restore quiet. It may interest your readers to read this law:

"The President of the Republic is authorized for the term of one year, to cause persons to be arrested and removed from one part of the country to another, fixing the residence of an individual and changing it when believed to be necessary; to augment the number of troops of the standing army to the extent circumstances may demand; to employ the public funds without limiting himself to appropriations; and to remove public officers without conforming to the forms enjoined in Part 10, Art. 82 of the Constitution."

These powers you will perceive are quite dictatorial, but they are quite necessary. Without them the peace of the country cannot be maintained, perhaps not with them.

The present revolution I conceive to be entirely wanting in reason. The opposition to the Administration is composed of the two extremes of ultra-liberal and ultra-conservative. Their only bond of union is hostility to the existing Government. They have no mutual confidence or sympathy. Each is scheming to "do" the other. Could they succeed in ousting Montt they would at once fall out among themselves, and then anarchy would ensue, for neither section could succeed in carrying on the Government. Our only hope is, therefore, in the Administration holding its ground, of which there is less reason for certainty than we wish.

Caldera is in the hands of the Government forces; but Copiapo, fifty-four miles in the interior, is occupied entirely by the insurgents. They are headed by PEDRO L. GALLO, who is styled Intendente. It is said, however, that the body of the citizens have no sympathy with his movement.

His brother, A. C. GALLO, and two others, are in prison, and under sentence of death, for promoting sedition in Santiago. This is the sentence the laws indicate, consequently the courts have had to pronounce it. It lies with the President and his advisers to say if it shall be carried into execution. But I presume it will not be.

Here, as well as in Concepcion and Aconcuagua, numerous arrests have been made, and in fact are being made every day.

Business is in great stagnation. Few sales, slow payments, dull prices, and high rates of exchange. Drafts on the United States are at 10 per cent. at sixty days sight.

A gentleman wrote me recently from Tacna, in Peru, that exchange at that place on this, was from 20 to 25 per cent. premium. Tacna is only six days from this, and communication by steamer twice a month.

The amount of imports to this country from the eastern slope of the Andes, viâ Aconcuagua, during the first six months of the present year, was $426,000; consisting chiefly of cattle, horses, mules, tallow, raisins, dried fruits, and soap; also a small amount of bar copper and ores.

Our communication with Talcahuano is now quite frequent. The Polynesian goes every week. She is an American propeller, and is doing a fair business. The Prince of Wales, British, goes twice a month.

The whaling season at that port is just beginning. Few whalers come here. But provisions are cheaper there; that is, all the products of the country. March is the month when the largest number of whalers gather there.

The promise of the crops is good as yet. This is the time of harvest. The only fear is that the revolution will draw off from agricultural labors the few hands there are. You would be surprised to see how very sparsely the country sections are populated.

The Valparaiso Bank, of discounts and deposits, has just held its annual meeting of shareholders. The number of shares is 4,000, at $500 a share. Twenty-five per cent., $125 on a share, is the capital paid up. The Bank is exceedingly cautious in all its operations. During the last six months it has lost nothing by bad debts. It emits no bills. The dividend for the last half year proposed by the Directors is 4½ per cent. The total of profits for the half year past is $29,395, to which, adding $9,000 balance from former account, the amount of profits on hand is $38,395. Of this sum, $22,500 are proposed to be distributed now in dividend; $12,500 retained to meet contingencies, and $3,395 passed to account of reserved fund. The reserved fund will then amount to about $14,000.

The shareholders of the Bank have also determined to erect a building for its accommodation. They have purchased a lot in front of the Exchange building, at head of the Mole. Plans have been made out and an edifice is to be reared which shall be an ornament to the city. The cost of land and edifice will be not far from $80,000.

I will add that the amount of deposits in the Bank during the last six months has been about fourteen millions of dollars; amount of discounts four millions; advances on accounts current $850 000; rate of interest on deposits at call 3 per cent.; fixed rate of discount 12 per cent. per annum.

A lamentable accident occurred Jan. 7 in Talcahuano Bay. Seven men attempted to cross to Tomé in a sail-boat, which was capsized, and were drowned. Three of these were Americans, one a Frenchman, and three Chilians. The Americans were DAVID L. FERGUSON, of Martha's Vineyard, leaves a wife and two children; BENJAMIN F. DOANE, of Fair Haven, (?) Conn., unmarried; and Captain HORACE YOUNG, of Nantucket, leaving wife and family.

This has been a most melancholy event, and has cast quite a shade of grief over the community.

VALPARAISO, Tuesday, Feb. 1, 1859.

The political condition of affairs to this date remains much the same as at my last writing. The rebellion is now confined to two spots; at the north the City of Copiapo is occupied by insurgents, headed by GALLO; and at the south Talca is in similar hands, under the command of ARTEAGO. From the bodies of troops ordered to march to Talca, it is certain that a serious revolt has taken place there. In fact, it is said that news arrived in Santiago, a day or two since, which has not been published. Hence we guess it was unfavorable to the Government.

This outbreak is every way to be deplored; and while there is no cause sufficient to warrant it, yet it is to be feared that the Administration has not succeeded in practicing the conciliatory policy that was to be desired. When, however, the present Government is compared with any that have preceded it, no one can deny that it bears the palm of superiority. The country enjoys excellent credit abroad; witness the late loan negotiated with BARINGS, in London, for $7,000,000 at four and a half per cent. And although hard times have prevailed here to the diminution of business, yet the domestic prosperity has been as great as could, under the circumstances, be expected.

I now fear that we are entering on a period of revolt that will not terminate soon, and that will involve fearful outlays of revenue, as well as loss of life.

From Lota, a coal-mining town south of Talcahuano, news has been received of a fire that destroyed twenty four of the miners' huts, on the 10th ult.

In Concepcion the printing office of the paper El Amigo del Pueblo has been ordered to be closed by the Government. Arrests had taken place also, in hopes of preventing a revolution there.

Three whalers had come in to get supplies at Talcahuano. The Susan and Mary, which landed nine hundred barrels of oil at Sandwich Islands, sailed again, to cruise, 15th ult. The Phœnix arrived, in ballast, and was loading for the United States. The schooner E. A. Luce had taken six hundred barrels in less than twelve months, which were shipped on board the Phœnix.

The line of American stage-coaches is running from Tomé to Chilian Baths. This season they are much frequented. The ride occupies about two days.

The steamboat Sotomayor, put on the River Bio-bio, near Concepcion, by MINTURN, is advertised for sale at auction, with the river privilege, by M.'s assignee.

The American bark Vickery has arrived to-day from the United States, en route for San Francisco. She has about 60 passengers, mostly mechanics and clerks seeking employment. They have made a poor move; for it is only a short time since about the same number came here from California on a similar errand.

In Santiago, the American Minister, Mr. BIGLER, is well. He seems very quiet, and is on good terms, I believe, with the Government.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Interior, G. URMENETA, who was here for his health has recently returned with unexpected haste to the Capital—probably on account of the revolution.

The newspaper El Mercurio, of this city, is still suspended, as it has been for more than six weeks. Such measures against the Press are very injudicious, and must sooner or later provoke reaction. The paper had spoken with undue and ill-timed severity of the policy of the rulers; but many feel that the treatment it is receiving is unnecessarily severe.

An article was recently translated and reprinted in this country, in one of the daily papers, taken from a work by COLBURN and HOLLEY, in which these gentlemen (Americans) have criticised American railways unfavorably. Be it known that the matter of English and American railways, and of English and American engineers, is rather a delicate subject in Chili, owing to various changes and collisions that have occurred during the last six years. Hence, this was a matter of boasting to some, when Americans censured American roads, and for some reason it was not particularly agreeable to others.

Consequently, an article was published by an American engineer, occupying an important position in this country, in one of the daily Spanish papers, which is also in press now in pamphlet form, both in the English and Spanish dress. It will appear shortly.

As I think it will not fail to interest some, and there may be many of your readers, I have obtained you a copy in proofs, which I inclose to you to reprint if you think proper.

I may add, for explanation, that Ferro Carril, means railroad, but is also the title of one of our newspapers.

Some of the facts set forth in this publication, in reply to COLBURN and HOLLEY, are very telling, and will go far to reestablish the credit of American railways. The fact is, the only railroad in Chili that has been completed till now, and that yields a profit, is one that was begun, concluded, and is still directed, by our countrymen. That is the railway from Caldera to Copiapo, which is 54 miles long, has been in operation eight years; and pays 18 per cent. per annum dividend on its capital.

SOUTH PACIFIC.

American Diplomacy in Central America.

ASPINWALL, Friday, March 4, 1859.

Mr. T. S. BELL, lately appointed United States Commercial Agent to San Juan del Norte, arrived here on the Star of the West. Mr. BELL is well-known here as having been one of those engaged a year ago in the foolish Kinney fillibustering expedition on San Juan. The necks of the party were saved, on that occasion, by Commander KENNEDY, of the Jamestown, who humanely interceded for them and sent them to Aspinwall.

Mr. BELL owes his appointment, not to the fact of his having been a fillibuster, but to his being the nephew of Senator BELL, of Texas, and also of EXTRA BILLY SMITH, of Virginia.

Is it any wonder that the United States should be considered a nation of fillibusters by the Nicaraguans, and that they should be averse to approve the Cass-Yrissari treaty when such men are sent among them to represent us? In Nicaragua we have a Minister who is scarcely ever in condition to attend to business—a Consul and a Commercial Agent. These constitute our whole diplomatic and semi-diplomatic force in that country. Consul PRIEST, at San Juan del Sur, has for years kept a grog shop there. His office is in one end of his own hotel, and the grog-shop and gambling-room in the other. At least such was the case during the Walker invasion.

What a noble representation!—and this, too, in a country to which England sends such a man as Sir WILLIAM GORE OUSELEY, and to which France is about to send one of her most astute and well-bred diplomatists and gentlemen!

THE MARCH OF MIRAMON UPON VERA CRUZ—PREPARATIONS FOR HIS RECEPTION—AN EMEUTE IN GUERRERO—INTERESTING FROM YUCATAN.

We have, by the way of Havana, details of news from Vera Cruz to Feb. 27. This intelligence is of course superseded partially by the dispatch given yesterday from the Tennessee at New-Orleans.

Gen. MIRAMON was at that date hourly expected at Vera Cruz. He was accompanied in his march by Gen. ROBLES as Chief of his staff. Letters from private sources indicated the probability of the fate of the place being decided by the 6th inst.

Gen. IGLESIAS, who commands the troops in Vera Cruz, had issued a proclamation declaring martial law, and subjecting those who dared to communicate with the enemy to the severest penalties.

The Consular residences of the city were crowded with refugees, while hosts of others had left the place.

On the 23d February, the American steamer Jasper left Vera Cruz for Alvarado, with about two hundred passengers, mostly ladies.

Alvarado has been strongly fortified within the last month, with large brass cannon and mortars taken from the Castle of San Juan de Ulloa.

Two schooners, freighted with powder and ball, have also been dispatched to that place; also, a load to Tampico.

A large body of Liberals from the Capital had arrived at Vera Cruz.

It was stated that a formidable conspiracy, in the conservative interest, had been discovered in Guerrero, giving Gen. ALVAREZ great trouble, and detaining him from lending any assistance to President JUAREZ.

Advices from Merida, Yucatan, are to Feb. 28. A conspiracy in favor of the moderados had been discovered in the Capital. A soldier betrayed the plot, and the leading participants were arrested.

The war against the Indians was prosecuted with the utmost ferocity, and was met with equal cruelty. Numerous Ranches had been burned, and their inhabitants slaughtered without mercy.

Porto Rico.

THE EXPORTS OF LAST YEAR—THE WRECKED SLAVER—THE SUGAR CROP.

From the Boletin Mercantil we derive Porto Rico dates to Feb. 26. That paper gives the following table, presenting a comparative view of the exports of the island for 1857 and 1858:

	1857.	1858.
Cotton, lbs	282,656	38,862
Sugar, lbs	86,391,546	121,319,374
Coffee, lbs	11,139,691	9,814,225
Hides, lbs	604,666	405,882
Molasses, gallons	2,745,675	3,729,511
Tobacco, lbs	4 028 491	4,908,444

The project of a bank at San Juan is agitated.

In regard to the slaver, name unknown, wrecked upon the shore of Humacao, Feb. 4, a correspondent writes: "On the 4th inst, at 10 o'clock, P. M., a schooner approached Point Candelero, making signals of distress. The vessel was discovered to be sinking at a distance of 50 yards from the shore. Aid was at once procured, and the entire crew and cargo rescued. The crew was at once imprisoned. They stated that the captain, mate and several seamen had died on the voyage. The steamer Hernan Cortes took off the negroes, numbering 600 in all, who were to be carried to the capital. At present they are housed in a barracoon at Catanos. They, of course, will be disposed of as emancipados.

The completion of the telegraph from the country seat of Mr. LEAD to his warehouse at San Juan, affords a topic for excessive enthusiasm.

The cane crop does not promise to be a very large one; the yield falling at least one-third short of last year.

Havana—Arrival of the Philadelphia.

THE MARKETS—STRANGERS AT HAVANA—TOBACCO GROWERS WANTED IN SAN DOMINGO—OPERATIC—THE NEW DOCK AT HAVANA.

The United States mail steamship Philadelphia, GUSTAVUS HARRISON, Esq., Commander, left New-Orleans March 5, for New-York viâ Havana, at which port she arrived on the morning of the 9th, and sailed same day for this port, arriving yesterday morning.

The Philadelphia landed and transferred 75 passengers at Havana, and brings 77 passengers and a fair cargo for New-York.

There was little of interest occurring at Havana.

Stock of sugar on hand, 150,000 boxes. Prices declined 1 rial ℔ arrobe.

Exchanges were heavy last week

Strangers in Havana about 1,000. Among the passengers from New-Orleans for Havana were General WM. WALKER and his right-hand man, Col. NATZMER.

An effort is making at Matanzas to procure hands accustomed to the culture of tobacco, to go to Santo Domingo, where such assistance is in great demand.

Madame GASSIER had her benefit at the Villanueva Theatre on the 5th inst., when the extraordinary sum of $6,000 was realized for admissions; while the presents showered upon the prima donna brought the entire profits of the occasion, in all probability, to $20,000. Mme. GAZZANIGA, a few evenings before, had taken from $12,000 to $13,000 at her benefit.

The new dock at Havana had been tested by the admission of the steamer Almendares. Every part of the machinery was found to work perfectly.

JUSTICE TO A POLICEMAN.—CHARLES E. PRESTON, the policeman charged in Senator SPINOLA's Report with having been guilty of a very gross crime while a female prisoner was under his charge, sends us a communication declaring the charge to be utterly false. He sends also an affidavit made by the woman herself, stating that she signed the paper making the original charge at the urgent request of other persons and that she did not know it to be true, but believed it to be false. We have not room for the documents themselves, but have thus given the substance of them.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

Brooklyn Common Council—Interesting Proceedings.

A regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held last evening. The following communication was presented from the Fire Commissioners of the Western District relative to reorganizing the Fire Department:

"We have had under consideration for some time the subject of reorganizing the Fire Department but have delayed action owing to the inclement season of the year and the unfinished state of the water works. The rapid increase of our city must preclude the idea of a large reduction in the force or number of apparatus. Although by reducing the number of Engine Companies and supplying Hose Companies in their place, a considerable saving can be effected, the latter organization requiring less men and being less expensive to maintain.

Some of the engine companies have been located too near each other, and we propose to disband the least efficient in such cases, and to distribute the force so as to occupy such portions of the city as are now unprotected. An ample supply of water with such force as is expected, will render the Hose Companies a very efficient arm of the Department. A supply of hose of requisite strength is urgently needed, and we would recommend your early attention to that necessity. After a careful examination of the state of the Department and the wants of the city, we would recommend for your adoption the following changes, viz.:

Engine Company No. 1 to be disbanded as an Engine Company, and a Hose Company to be organized in its place, to be called Hose No. 11.

Engine Company No 4 to be disbanded and the property sold, no apparatus being needed in that location.

Engine Co. No. 8 to be disbanded, and the property sold—it not being required, in our opinion—a strong engine company and two hose companies being located in the immediate vicinity.

Engine Co. No. 10 to be disbanded, (there being another and stronger engine company in its immediate vicinity,) and in its place a hose company, to be called Hose Co. No. 12

Engine Co. No. 11 to be disbanded, and in its place organize a hook and ladder company, to be called Hook and Ladder Co. No. 5, such an apparatus being very much needed in that locality.

Engine Co. No. 13—In accordance with the petition of numerous property holders and residents of the Sixth Ward to transfer this Company to said Ward, to be located in house formerly occupied by Engine Co. No. 15, and in its place thereof to organize a hose company, to be called Hose Co. No 9.

Engine Company No. 19—We also recommend this Company to be disbanded, the Company being weak and inefficient. The house being good and in a good location, we recommend it being retained for the further use of the Department.

These changes will reduce the number of men allowed to the Companies two hundred: will give two valuable pieces of property, which, if sold, will pay for any additional expense in furnishing hose, hose-carriages, hook and ladder, truck, &c., besides a sum to the credit of the Department. Also, it will give a surplus of six engines, which can be supplied to such Companies as have not suitable apparatus, and furnish relays in case of repairs or other emergencies."

The Commissioners recommended additional alarm bells. The communication was referred to the Fire Department Committee.

More City Railroads.—Mr. E. B. LITCHFIELD sent in a communication asking permission to lay a double or single railroad track from South Ferry through Atlantic-street, Flatbush-avenue, Fifth-avenue to the lower entrance of Greenwood Cemetery, near Thirty-seventh-street, with a branch from Fifth-avenue through First or Third-street to Flatbush; also, with a branch from Atlantic-street through Powers-street to Flatbush avenue to Lafayette avenue, through Lafayette-avenue to the Broadway Railroad. Petitions were also presented asking permission for the City Railroad Company to lay rails and run cars through Greene and Lafayette avenues in connection with the Myrtle-avenue line to Fulton Ferry. Referred to the Railroad Committee. In connection with this subject a resolution was offered by Alderman VAN BRUNT, and adopted, directing the Clerk to give public notice of a meeting of the Committee to hear any remonstrances, if any, against granting the prayer of the petitioners.

Spring Election.—The Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies, together with the Alderman in each Ward, were directed to report at the next meeting places for holding the polls at the election to be held on the 5th ult. A resolution was also adopted authorizing a proper application to be made to the Legislature for power to change the names of certain streets in Brooklyn, where two are named alike.

The Board adjourned for one week.

ITEMS.—The Water Commissioners and the Chief Engineer of the Water Works published in the Brooklyn papers yesterday a lengthy rejoinder to the recent "preliminary report" of the Special Committee of the Common Council, as to the manner in which the works have thus far been constructed.... A girl named CATHARINE SWEEZY attempted to commit suicide late Sunday night, by jumping into the East River at the foot of Washington-street. She was rescued by a boatman.... During the last week twenty persons were admitted as patients into the City Hospital, and nineteen were discharged. Total number remaining 118.... The net proceeds from the lecture in the Eastern District of Brooklyn last Friday night, by Mr. EVERETT, for the Mount Vernon Fund, were $444 75.

Ho! for Pike's Peak!
AND THE GOLD DIGGINGS!
No mother's son should be allowed to go to the Gold Diggings without one of those VOLCANIC REPEATING RIFLES or PISTOLS, which carry from seven to thirty balls.
Without doubt, they are the most complete weapon ever introduced with the water-proof ball, which is not effected by any changes of climate, or subject to the many mishaps to which the ordinary revolver is liable to.
With a good conscience and a Volcanic Pistol, you may sleep soundly and safely, with your hard-earned nuggets by your side.
My friend, if you have regard for your life or your scalp, do not fail to get one or more of these invaluable weapons before starting on your journey. Buy for yourself, and advise your friends to do the same. A word to the wise is sufficient.
Rifles, Carbines and Pistols, carrying from 7 to 30 balls, twenty-five per cent. less than Colt's, and so much better.

LAW OF LIFE INSURANCE.

OFFICE OF AMERICAN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., No. 3 Trinity Building, No. 111 Broadway, NEW-YORK, March 14, 1859.

MESSRS. EDITORS: As the question "whether or not a husband has an insurable interest in the life of his wife, and may, with any degree of safety, effect an insurance thereon," has been very freely discussed in the columns of your journal, and by the Press generally, during the past few weeks, I deem it due to the members of this Company, and think that perhaps it may not prove altogether uninteresting to the public to publish the following communication from the Secretary:

P. D. WHITMORE,
Actuary of American Mutual Life Insurance Co.

AMERICAN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, NEW HAVEN, March 8, 1859.

P. D. Whitmore, Esq., Actuary, New-York:

DEAR SIR: In answer to your letter, asking for information relating to the powers and usages of the American Mutual Life Insurance Company, in the matter of insurances on the lives of married women by their husbands, allow me to refer you to the language of one of the sections of the charter.

"SEC. 4. The said Company may issue Policies of Insurance to any person, for the sole use and benefit of any other person or persons, and, if by death or any other reason, the same shall become due and payable, the said amount or amounts shall be payable according to the terms and tenor of the said policy, and the same shall be free from any and all claims and demands of other persons, whether creditors or representatives; and the said Company may issue Policies of Insurance to any husband or wife, or minor children of the same family, upon the life or lives of either, for the sole use and benefit of either, or the survivors or survivor of either, and the avails of such policies shall be free from the claims and demands of all other persons."

This section needs no explanation, nor is it capable of two interpretations.

You are aware that our Policies provide "that Policies which are assigned, or are made payable to creditors, or to persons whose relation to the party whose life is insured is not that of husband, wife, child, parent, brother or sister, are subject to proof of interest, unless the Company waive proof of such interest," by indorsement.

No disagreement or difficulty can arise, we think, under these liberal and plainly defined provisions.

Yours very truly, BENJAMIN NOYES,
Secretary American Mutual Life Insurance Company.

A CHOICE PROPERTY FOR SALE.—THE estate occupying the commanding promontory at the head of Highland Bay, just above West Point, on the Hudson—a most lordly domain, known by the traditionary name Minabar, is now for sale. It has been thus described in one of Mr. Willis' letters from Idlewild: "This elevated point of land is at the junction of the Moodna River, with the Hudson, and was once a magnificent Terrace Island, connected with the Highlands now by the causeway of the estate. It consists of about 115 acres; the terrace lawn, on which stands the dwelling, being a superbly-wooded table-land of 30 acres, 120 feet above the water-level. The mouth of the Moodna River divides it from Idlewild. Its river front on the Hudson is very nearly a mile, with a water grant to the Channel. Its front slope is covered with grand forest trees, and under them are the fortifications built there by Washington. It might be divided into three noble estates, as the separate building sites are very favorable. The undersigned have been appointed sole agents for the United States and Canada, for the sale of the CHAMPAGNE WINES of Messrs. JACQUES GOERG & CO., at Chalons-sur-Marne, France. We present their Wines to the public under two brands, namely: LA PERLE AND RUBIS.

The "PERLE" Wine is of exquisite flavor and fruity taste, and is guaranteed to compare favorably with any Wine in the American market.

The "RUBIS" is a fine Cabinet Champagne, of a beautiful ruby color, which is natural to the wine. This wine is undoubtedly one of the finest Cabinet Champagnes produced in France, and is MADE FROM GRAPES OF THE CHOICEST SELECTIONS.

From the long experience, extensive possessions, and large means of the well-known house of Jacques Goerg & Co., and their determination to furnish wines which shall meet with the approval of consumers, we feel persuaded that a trial will fully establish all we claim for the excellence of these wines.

"PATENT LIGHTS."

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

Having been creditably informed that persons have on one or more occasions endeavored to injure our business by false and malicious statements to the effect that the vault light which we manufacture and sell is an infringement of letters patent granted to Mr. Thaddeus Hyatt, we hereby notify those persons to desist from such defamatory statements, as we shall hold them personally responsible for damages.

Letters patent for the vault light which we are manufacturing was granted June 29, 1858, and, should it be questioned, we are fully prepared to defend our rights in the premises, and to show that we are not infringing upon the rights of Mr. Hyatt or any one else.

JACKSON & THROCKMORTON, Architectural and Nautical Iron Works, Nos. 65 to 67 Goerck-st., New-York.

HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.

A CARD HAVING BEEN ISSUED TO THE PUBLIC

By parties who frankly confess that they do not pay me for my invention, I avail myself of this opportunity to advertise the names of those who do. The following persons, only, are licensed under my patents in this City:

George R. Jackson & Co.
J. B. & W. W. Cornell & Co.
S. B. Althause & Co.
Ingalls & Case.
Theodore Hyatt.

The law is, that a person who purchases or uses a patented article is equally liable for infringement with the maker of it. The "makers" having fairly notified the "users" of their intention not to pay, the "users" have only themselves to blame if I collect my tariff of them—as I shall certainly do. THADDEUS HYATT.

NEW-YORK, January, 1859.

BOONTON, PATENT MACHINE-MADE NUTS.—The subscribers are now manufacturing at their Works, Boonton, New-Jersey, WROUGHT IRON NUTS, upon R. H. COLE'S newly patented NUT MACHINES. In their manufacture the patented device of the "Double Punch," namely, two punches operating from opposite sides toward the centre of the Nut forces into the body of the Nut most of the Iron, which in all other processes is punched out; and also condenses the Iron around the bolt hole, thus insuring the greatest strength in the Screw thread, and making, as they believe, a Nut superior to any made by hand, or the ordinary machine processes.

They invite all consumers of WROUGHT IRON NUTS to make trial of them, and will furnish samples and their price list on application. FULLER, LORD & CO., Nos. 137 and 139 Greenwich-st.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL, OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—This delightful and positive invigorant of the human system is fast superseding all other remedies; in fact, when its virtues become fully known, it will be the only remedy in use. Its action on the nervous system and reproductive organs is most extraordinary, allaying all over-excitement, and infusing into the nervous organization that degree of tension which is requisite to give the human system the enjoyment of its full powers, both mentally and physically. As an appetizer it is equally remarkable; assimilated with the gastric juices of the stomach, it assists them in readily dissolving all nutritious substances, and converting them into pure and wholesome blood; thus the digestion is improved, and the whole framework of man moves on in a more vigorous and harmonious manner. Price $3 per bottle, or two bottles for $5. Principal office No. 293 Fulton-st., New-York. DR. MAGNIN.

WATTS' NERVOUS ANTIDOTE.—NEW YORK, Feb. 8, 1859.—Dr. STRATTON: After reading an advertisement in the Times of to-day, setting forth the right of John Pine to manufacture the medicine known as Watts' Nervous Antidote and sell the same, I feel it my duty to let you know that no such writing was ever given by Dr. Watts to John Pine or any other person, nor could have been given without my consent or approval. So be assured of me, Sir, that I held the recipe and medicines in my possession from April, 1849, until I sold the same to you. Yours, most respectfully, MATILDA VASQUEZ, mother-in-law of Dr. Watts, No. 543 8th-av. Look out for counterfeits by babblers, honest druggists.

DR. RALPH'S PRACTICAL PRIVATE Treatise on the Diseases and Abuses of the Sexual System, with illustrative plates. Price, $1. Eighteenth edition. Sold at No. 2 Vesey-st., (Astor House,) by the author, No 52 Bleecker-st., or mailed, securely enveloped, by addressing to Box No. 869 Post-Office.

DR. HUNTER—NO. 3 DIVISION-ST., PERFORMS THE GREATEST CURES EVER MADE. THE ONLY SECURITY AGAINST HUMBUGS AND THE EFFECTS OF DISEASES IS TO APPLY TO HIS OLD DISPENSARY, NO. 3 DIVISION-ST., NEW-YORK. ESTABLISHED IN 1834.

Dr. HUNTER, No. 3 Division-st., offers to the public the only reliable remedy known in the wide world for the permanent cure and removal of every particle of the rank and poisonous virus of venereal disease, which is the genuine HUNTER'S RED DROP, made from the original recipe, in the possession of Dr. HUNTER and not known by any other person living except Dr. HUNTER, at No. 3 Division-st., one door from the Bowery, all the assertions of the many poisonous quacks to the contrary notwithstanding. Dr. H. has prepared every vial of this celebrated medicine with his own hands that has ever been offered for sale for the last thirty years, and has never intrusted any living person with the secret; consequently, everything offered for sale at any other place is a libel, a base and wicked counterfeit, got up by some unprincipled wretch that, for the sake of a dollar, would trifle with the lives of his fellow-men.

MUNICIPAL.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Large Fees for Assessors and Collectors—Extending Reade-street and the Second-avenue—The Fountain to be Removed from the Park.

The Mayor last evening returned to the Board of Aldermen the assessment list for regulating, grading, &c., One Hundred and Twenty-fifth-street, from the Eighth-avenue to the west side of Manhattan-street, with his objections to confirming it. The communication was referred to the Committee on Assessments.

A petition asking that a market might be located on the west side of the Eleventh-avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Forty-sixth streets, was referred.

The following communication from the Comptroller was read, and referred to the Committee on Assessments:

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE. }
COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, March 14, 1859. }

To the Honorable the Common Council.

GENTLEMEN: I return herewith the Assessment List, confirmed Feb. 19, 1859, for paving, with Belgian pavement, Madison-avenue, from Twenty-third to Forty-second-street.

The ordinance under which this work was done directs that the property owners on the line of the improvement shall bear one-half the expense, and the City the other half. The contract price was $42,798 62, to which is added, on this list, $3,403 62, for costs of advertising, surveying, inspection, assessing and collecting. For the last two items, to wit, assessing and collecting, the sum of $2,079 07 is charged, and is made up by charging full fees upon the whole expense—not only the half to be recovered by assessment, but upon the other half to be paid from the City Treasury.

My views upon this subject were fully communicated to the Honorable the Common Council on the 13th of January last, and I have seen no reason to alter them. On the contrary, further examination has but strengthened the conclusions then arrived at.

In this instance, the only service required of the assessors or the collectors was to reimburse the Treasury for one half the whole expenditure. A simple statement appended to the list that the other half is to be borne by the Treasury is neither intended as an assessment nor can be regarded as such. It is not a list of property assessed or of any property assessed, nor is it a part (property) even of the list in question; and yet for this statement, untraced in a single line, the fees charged are $1,030 54.

I therefore return this list, to the end that such action may be taken towards its correction as may be deemed necessary to protect the City Treasury from a claim having so little merit. Respectfully submitted,
ROBT. T. HAWS, Comptroller.

A communication was received from the Street Commissioner, stating that the report in favor of widening and extending Reade-street had been confirmed by the Supreme Court, and asking the passage of a resolution directing that the actual opening of the street take place on the 1st of May next.

Alderman ADAMS moved that a resolution to this effect be adopted, and that it be sent to the Board of Councilmen for concurrence, and the motion was carried.

Another communication from the Street Commissioner, setting forth that the report of the Commissioners in the matter of opening and extending Second-avenue, from One Hundred and Twenty-third-street to the Harlem River, had been confirmed by the Supreme Court, and recommending the adoption of a resolution directing that the actual opening of the avenue take place forthwith, was read and the resolution was adopted.

The Report of the Committee on Lands and Places in favor of removing the fountain from the City Hall Park and constructing a fountain in Tompkins-square was adopted.

Alderman STARR offered a preamble and resolution, which were adopted, setting forth that a new pier had been constructed at the foot of Christopher-street, North River, at an expense of some $12,000, and additions have been made to the pier, and obstructions placed on it, and directing that the Street Commissioner report to the Board, by whose direction parts of the pier have been destroyed, encumbrances placed thereon, and additions built, projecting into the adjoining slip.

An invitation from the Irish Societies to review the procession on St. Patrick's Day in the afternoon was accepted, and the Board adjourned to Thursday.

BOARD OF COUNCILMEN.

Street Cleaning—Communications from the Comptroller.

The Board met last evening at the usual hour. A petition was received from 500 citizens, property holders and residents on the east side of the City, asking for a railroad through East Broadway, Avenue D, and other streets. Referred to Committee on Railroads. Councilman ALLEN presented a petition for paving Forty-third-street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, with Belgian pavement. Referred to Committee on Streets. Engine Company No. 22, Hose Company No. 28, Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, petitioned for rooms in the second story of the house on the southwest corner of Centre and Chambers streets. Referred to Committee on Fire Department. Councilman OTTARSON presented a petition for a trial of the iron pavement on Wall-street. Referred.

Councilman McCARTY offered a resolution directing the Corporation Counsel to inform the Board, at his earliest convenience, of the progress of the suit pending between the State and City, relative to the West Washington Market property. Adopted. Councilman PLATT offered a resolution directing the Street Commissioner to have the electric clocks in the public offices put in order. Referred to Committee on Arts and Sciences.

Councilman OTTARSON offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Mayor be requested to inform the Board by what authority men are now cleaning the streets, what expense has already been incurred for such work since the 1st of January, and also whether the work is done by contract, and that his Honor be requested to give the information at the next meeting.

Adopted.

The same gentleman offered a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Streets, directing the laying of Belgian pavement in Broadway, between Seventeenth and Twenty-fifth streets.

Councilman PLATT offered a resolution directing the Croton Aqueduct Board to advertise for proposals for laying Belgian pavement on Third-avenue, between Sixth and Thirty-fourth streets. Referred.

An invitation was received and accepted to review the civic Societies on St. Patrick's Day.

The Board concurred with the Aldermen in granting Engine Company No. 42 a temporary location in the Park.

The Board also concurred in amending the ordinance licensing charcoal venders, so as to include venders of kindling wood.

The Comptroller sent in a communication, specifying the number and salaries of the additional Clerks which he found necessary, as follows:

One General Book-keeper, at a salary of	$2,000
One Second-Assistant Book-keeper, at a salary of	1,200
Two General Clerks, at a salary of	each 1,200
One General Clerk, at a salary of	1,000
One Messenger	each $800 and $600
IN THE AUDITING DEPARTMENT.
One Third-Assistant Auditor, at a salary of	$1,200
One Third-Assistant Auditor, at a salary of	1,200
One Fourth-Assistant Auditor, at a salary of	1,000
One Messenger, at a salary of	700
IN THE BUREAU OF CITY REVENUE.
Two Deputy Collectors	each $1,000
One Messenger	600
IN THE BUREAU OF ARREARS.
One Interest Clerk	$1,200
One Map Clerk	800
Three General Clerks	each 800

The same official sent in a communication with reference to the removal of night soil, which was referred to the Committee on Public Health.

He says that under the present arrangement, the expense to the City of having the work performed is about $1,250 per week in Summer, and about $1,150 per week in Winter, making an aggregate of more than $60,000 per annum. I am assured that the work can be done for less than one-half the sum it now costs. The appropriation for this service for the current year being but $30,000, the whole amount will be expended under present rates before the warm months commence, and the sinks will be overflowing, with no means remaining in the Treasury for cleansing them.

I would therefore recommend the immediate action of the Common Council, and that the proper Department be directed to make a contract in the manner provided by the charter and ordinances for the removal of the contents of sinks and privies. Respectfully submitted.
ROBERT T. HAWS, Comptroller.

THE TAX LEVY.

The Clerk's communication, showing the amount of money called for in the Tax Levy, for which the Common Council was responsible, was ordered to be printed in the TIMES, Herald, Tribune, Sun, and in the official papers. It is as follows:

To the Honorable the Board of Councilmen of the City of New-York:

GENTLEMEN: On the 2d of February last the following resolution was adopted by your honorable body:

Whereas, The tax-payers are under the impression that the Common Council are responsible for the heavy rate of taxation;

Resolved, That the Clerk of this Board be requested to prepare for publication a detailed statement of the various amounts ordered to be raised, beyond their control, such as requirements of the Police Board, Ten Governors, School Commissioners, interest on debt, arrearages, amounts for judgments, &c., thereby showing the amount actually expended for City purposes.

The following facts and figures are accordingly submitted as the result of a thorough scrutiny of the Tax-Levy lately adopted by the Common Council:

The total amount to be raised by tax for the year 1859 is	$10,496,991 29
Beyond the control of the Common Council of 1859	8,251,714 29
Over which the Common Council have limited control	2,245,277 00

Annexed, marked A, is a statement in detail of amounts beyond the control of the Common Council of 1859.

Of the $2,245,277 over which the Common Council of 1859 have limited control, it is essential a few words should be said to answer the spirit of the resolution, and show how little control the Common Council has over even this amount.

By the thirty-eighth section of the Charter of 1857, departments (and consequently bureaux under them exercise the power) are sanctioned in making contracts under $250 without consent or knowledge of the Common Council, and making requisitions upon the Comptroller, draw the money to meet the expenses so incurred; it is next to impossible to arrive at the exact amount drawn from the treasury in this way, but from such an examination as I have given of the warrants drawn in 1858, it is evident that it will amount, at the very lowest calculation, to $500,000, and more probably to $750,000.

For example, of the $35,600 appropriated for fitting up parks under the direction of the Bureau of Lands and Places, it is most probable that the Common Council will not direct the expenditure of a tenth portion of the amount; thus the care and ornamenting the parks will come under the discretion of the department; the same may be said of "Croton Aqueduct Repairs, $45,000;" "Sewers, repairing and cleaning, $20,000;" and generally, the amounts set apart for the many bureaux under the various departments.

The Common Council have not the power to rent or purchase property, and yet have the authority to authorize the same to be done by the Comptroller or the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund—as, when necessity may arise for the purchase of a lot for an engine, hook and ladder or hose company, the Common Council may merely direct that a lot shall be purchased. The sum of $92,708 is thus included in the Tax-Levy, over which the Common Council is supposed to have control, for the purpose of rents and purchase of lots of ground for fire companies. Most of which property was directed to be purchased in 1858, and will be immediately transferred to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and of course will increase the amount of real estate belonging to the City.

The Common Council can exercise but little control over the money expended for "Belgian pavement, streets-paving, repairs, wells and pumps, repairing and cleaning, water pipes and laying, and cleaning streets," beyond the mere fact of confirming contracts and requesting the appropriate departments to have the work done. The province of the Common Council being to direct the manner in which the work shall be performed—the amount for these purposes is $716,300.

Again, the amount under the head of "Salaries," is $376,232, the Common Council can reduce the number of officers and their salaries. A large corps of officials must necessarily exist, and be paid to carry on the municipal business of this metropolis.

The only discretion the Common Council have in this matter, is to decide whether any portion of this official corps could be dispensed with, or whether the work could be adequately performed at less expense, which it is apparent would leave, at most, but a small margin for a decrease.

Thus of the amount hereinbefore mentioned, over which the Common Council have but limited control, viz., $2,245,277. It will be readily perceived by the foregoing statement, that the sum of over $1,740,000 is almost entirely without their jurisdiction; and this sum does not include all that might be mentioned in the same category.

The Common Council is legislative in its capacity; its province under the original charter was to make laws and ordinances governing its internal regulations, protect the citizens and their property by a well regulated Watch Department, lay out and ornament the public parks, regulate the markets and ferries, see the City well supplied with wholesome water, establish a system of sewerage, protect the City in cases of conflagration, "prepare for the exigencies of the most commercial metropolis on this side of the Atlantic, and look after its corporate and private rights." And to this end all charters prescribes that the Common Council shall not be executive, yet the originally legitimate duties of the Common Council are gradually withdrawn from the protection of the City and thrown into the hands of Commissioners appointed by that Body which declares the Common Council shall be legislative in its various capacities.

The which Commissioners, individually, call for more money to support them than the entire amount under the more immediate control of the Common Council, whose powers are gradually becoming but a shadow.

The first section of the Dongan Charter, of 1686, says, "the City of New-York is an ancient city, a body corporate, possessed of divers lands, rights and franchises"—it is not questionable whether those rights, privileges, franchises and powers, more ancient far than the State itself, can be ruthlessly, without even the consent or voice of its people being invoked, be taken away and placed within the control of Commissioners foreign to the City? In 1803 it was questionable whether the State had the power even to increase the number of Wards, or change the boundaries thereof, without the consent of the Aldermen and Assistants.

We are informed by the old charters that the general powers of the Common Council are, "to make, ordain and establish, from time to time, laws and ordinances such as should seem to be good, useful or necessary for the good rule and government of the body corporate, and of all officers, inhabitants and residents of the City, within the limits thereof," and for "the further public good, common profit, trade, better government and rule of said City;" to ordain and enforce penalties for breaches of their laws and ordinances, &c., &c., and not to expend moneys raised by tax, the which must be disbursed by the Executive Departments.

The power delegated to the Common Council to regulate or moderate the disbursement of the amount raised by taxation is thus shown to be extremely limited—the action of Commissioners and Executive departments being almost or utterly independent of their control.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
C. T. McCLENACHAN, Clerk.

In reply to inquiries, Councilman OTTARSON said that the Special Committee on Repairs to the City Hall hoped to be able within a week to submit such plans as would be approved.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday at 3 P. M. The bill of Isaac Meserole, for board for witnesses detained at the house of detention in White-street, amounting to $463 50, was presented and referred. A resolution offered by Mr. TWEED, in favor of authorizing the appointment of a messenger in the Recorder's office at a salary of $800 per annum from Jan. 1, last, was referred.

Mr. BELL offered a resolution in favor of authorizing the Committee on Criminal Courts and Police to contract for the furnishing of meals to those Jurors of the Criminal Courts whom, in the opinion of the Justices thereof, it is necessary to so provide for, and directing that due notice be given to the Justices of the Courts of the selection of a suitable place at which meals are hereafter to be furnished. Mr. BELL presented the resolution, he said, for the purpose of preventing hereafter the presentation of such bills for meals furnished to Jurors as was presented from the Astor House recently. The resolution was referred. A communication was received from Ex-Coroner Connery expressing his surprise that any exception had been taken to the bill of Mr. John Ward for services attending the disinterment of the body of Mrs. S. Stephens. The bill amounts to $47 40. The communication was referred. The Board agreed to rent the second floor of No. 4 Centre-street, at $800, for a Coroner's office. A resolution in favor of appropriating $50 for clothes for poor witnesses detained at the House of Detention, was referred. A communication from the officers of the 11th Regiment, asking the Board to pay rent for fifteen months, at $650 per year, for their drill rooms, corner of Delancy and Chrystie streets, was referred. The Board adjourned to Monday.

The Wild Africans Surrendered—Summary Proceedings.

(From the Savannah Republican, 9th.)

The two Africans, of the Wanderer's cargo, that were arrested in Macon some weeks ago by the Deputy United States Marshal and brought to the jail of this city, were discharged yesterday, under the following circumstances: Mr. C. A. L. LAMAR, it seems, took the bull by the horns and made affidavit before Justice STALEY that the aforesaid Africans were his property, that he had quiet and peaceable possession of them and that they were taken from him without his consent. Upon this affidavit Justice STALEY issued a possessory warrant, addressed to CHARLES VAN HORN, the Jailor of Chatham County, and directing him to bring the negroes before him, the aforesaid Justice. This requisition was promptly obeyed by the Jailor, and the Africans being brought before the Justice, Mr. JOHN A. TUCKER swore that he had seen them in possession of the claimant in December last; whereupon the Africans were turned over to Mr. LAMAR, and the novel proceedings brought to a close. The proceedings, we hear, were wholly ex parte, and disposed of in a very brief space of time.

It is but due to the United States District-Attorney, Mr. GANAHL, who has discharged his duty in these Slave-trade cases with praiseworthy fidelity to the Government, to add, that he was engaged at the time in a legal investigation before the Court of Admiralty, and had not the slightest intimation of what was going on until the entire matter had been disposed of.

The Fifth Annual Commencement of the Medical School of Harvard College, was held March 8. Thirty students graduated. Dr. Henry J. Bigelow delivering the parting address.

THE ASTOR HOUSE.—STETSON, the indefatigable host of this house, is constantly in pursuit of every improvement that will conduce to the comfort of his guests. He has capped the climax of luxury by recently supplying his rooms with Howe's Patent Elliptic Spring Beds. The patrons of this noble old Hotel can now enjoy the real poetry of "balmy sleep," as we have done ever since the invention was first made public.—Albany Express.

MONDAY, March 14—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, March 12, 1859, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of March 5:

Increase in Loans	$984,194
Decrease in Specie	1,239,911
Increase in Circulation	28,328
Decrease in Undrawn Deposits	611,919

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	March 13, 1858	March 12, 1859	March 5, 1859
Capital	$66,600,000	$68,048,385	$68,040,385
Loans	105,193,631	126,205,261	125,221,067
Specie	32,961,076	25,530,054	26,769,965
Circulation	6,755,958	8,100,021	8,071,693
Gross Deposits	90,063,432	107,458,392	109,431,827
Exchanged	16,511,506	21,270,283	22,631,799
Undrawn	73,552,926	86,188,109	86,800,028
In Sub-Treasury	2,964,197	8,677,357	7,145,928

The Bank Averages result about equal to the previous estimate of the Street. The Statement is varied from last week chiefly by the operations of and with the Treasury Department. Further advances have been made both by the Banks and private lenders on the New Stock of Jan. 24. The line of Mercantile Discounts is not materially increased, nor the export demand for Specie important. Indeed, the stock of Bullion in the City gains on the previous comparison, without the aid of the California arrival of this morning, viz:

March 5, in Bank	$26,769,965
In Sub-Treasury	7,145,928
Total	$33,915,893
March 12, in Bank....$25,530,054
Sub-Treasury....8,677,357	34,207,411
Gain of the week	$291,518

The Specie movement to-day is the receipt of $933,130 in Bullion from San Francisco and from $300,000 to $500,000 in Treasury Drafts on the New-York Sub-Treasury. The Office at San Francisco sold $500,000 the day before the present mail was made up, and the probability is that nearly the whole amount came forward in various remittances to the Atlantic cities. Already $225,000 have been presented and paid at the New-York office. The whole of the Sub-Treasury operations to-day amount to $1,182,344 inward, of which $826,502 on account of the New Loan, and $43,000 for customs, and $658,442 outward, of which $225,000 on California arrival, as above stated. To-morrow will nearly or quite wind up the inward payments on account of the Loan, and in the next day or two will begin the disbursements on the Treasury Bills which fall due this week and next, so far as the same may be brought forward for redemption. We hear of one parcel of $500,000 which will be promptly presented, and of several smaller sums.

In the market for Money there is further employment, at call, or on short notice, on the New Government Stock. The terms are 4 ₱ cent., returnable on demand, and 4½@5 ₱ cent. where specific time is agreed upon between lender and borrower. Some purchases were also made of the Stock, on the last London quotation, and report of sales in that market, by one or two houses in the Foreign business, altogether about $150,000, at 103⅞ ₱ cent. It is also intimated that an interest of one-third, or $1,000,000 in the award to the Washington firm of RITTENHOUSE & Co., has been purchased by Mr. G. B. LAMAR, now of Savannah, formerly President of the Bank of the Republic in this City.

The rates of Discount on mercantile bills, and of Foreign Exchange are the same to-day as through the last week. The range of the former, on first-class paper, is from 5@7 ₱ cent., 60 days to 6@8 months. A leading Banking firm are drawing on England at 109⅞ ₱ cent., to which other prime Bank bills conform. Select merchant and transient Bank bills rate 109⅝@109⅞; other merchant bills 109@109⅜ ₱ cent. Francs are firm, 5f. 13¾@5f. 12½.

The Stock Market is irregular and dull on the dealings of the day, the speculative shares preponderating, particularly on the Western Shares, which close lower than on Saturday, by ½@¼ ₱ cent.; Galena, 68⅝; Rock Island, 59⅝; Michigan Central, 51⅝; Michigan Guaranteed, 46½@½, and Toledo, 26¼@½ ₱ cent. The influence of the tone of the market on this part of the list extended to New-York Central, which finally left off 79⅝@⅞, and to Reading, which closed 48⅛@¼. The flurry in this stock on Friday afternoon, when about 3,000 shares were suddenly forced on sale, and on Saturday forenoon, when about the same amount was brought in again, all by the same Broker, is said to have grown out of a mistake in a telegraphic order from Philadelphia, on Friday, to sell three hundred instead of 3,000 shares. In Hudson River, Harlem, Erie, Illinois Central and Panama the changes were not marked from Saturday afternoon. New-York Central Six ₱ Cents were ¼@½ ₱ cent. higher on the Foreign quotation, and Illinois Central Construction Bonds steady. In State Stocks the business was not important; Tennessees ⅜ ₱ cent. lower at the close. The sale of California Seven ₱ Cents is almost arrested by the difficulty made by the State in attempting to recover about $22,000 of the whole new issue of 1858, which is since alleged to have been made by mistake of the accounting officers, on fraudulent scrip. The numbers of the tainted Bonds have not all been published. Numbers 262 and 263 only have been made known to the Brokers here, who bought or sold them last season. The case is before a Committee of the Stock Exchange, and we understand its hardship to the holders and the injury to California credit will also be represented to the Governor and Auditor, through Senator GWIN, who soon returns to California. In reference to the short appropriation for all the outstanding old Bonds of the State, Governor WELLER has addressed the following note to Messrs. DUNCAN, SHERMAN & Co.:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, }
SACRAMENTO, February 19, 1859. }

GENTLEMEN: I regret that in the midst of pressing public engagements, your letter of the 29th ult., remains unanswered until the present moment.

In regard to the indebtedness of the State unprovided for, I have to say that, in my opinion, a vote of the people will be necessary before bonds can be issued.

It is possible that there are still legal and equitable demands unfunded, to the amount of say $250,000; and it is understood that a bill will be passed at the present session making provision for payment.

I do not doubt that this will receive the ratification of the people, as they have already shown that the disgrace of repudiation shall not attach to them. I am, very respectfully, your obedient.
(Signed) JOHN B. WELLER.

Mr. THOMAS GEORGE WALKER, junior partner of the late firm of THOMAS E. WALKER & SON, has gone into the Stock and Exchange business with Mr. DAVID TWEEDIE, under the style of WALKER & TWEEDIE. See advertisement.

We have been informed that a large number of the bondholders of the Second Mortgage Bonds of the La Crosse and Milwaukee Railroad Company met at the Astor House to-day, and appointed David E. Wheeler, Prentis Dow, David Dows, Francis A. Palmer and John Bodine a Committee to protect their interests.

The Ohio Legislature Investigating Committee who reported on the defalcations in the State Treasury, were also instructed to inquire into the connexion of the State with the Trust Company, and the causes of its disastrous failure on the eventful 24th of August, 1857. This part of the Report of the Committee has also been published. While the Committee comment with much severity upon the management both at New-York and Cincinnati, placing a large share of the blame upon Mr. LUDLOW, the New-York Cashier, without sparing the gross neglect of the Cincinnati Board to correct the abuses at the Agency, of which they had warning as early as May 1, 1856, they seem to set out upon the hypothesis that the concern was radically weak from the very start of the New-York Agency. Its organization they assume to have been illegal, and the principle and practice between the Home Office and the Agency, vicious in itself, and deceptive to the public. The Committee say:

The general condition of the Company may be stated thus:

The Trust Department does a sluggish business of two and a half millions, on the capital of the Company of two millions.

The Banking Department does an exceedingly active business of two and a half millions, on almost no capital, and

The New-York Agency does an active business of two and one-half to three millions on no capital at all, or a business of eight millions on a capital of never fully two millions.

We need not wonder that the two last named Departments should, as the correspondence shows, be always liable to extremities; and that the whole institution should ever be constitutionally weak. And as, bearing this general view in mind, we look closer into each Department, we see more and more the rules of action upon which its business was conducted.

The Trust Department had absorbed all the capital of the entire corporation. This, at the rate of interest as recognized in commercial dealing, rose to 12 ₱ cent., became an eyesore to the managers of the institution, who, like all the rest of mankind, were anxious for equaling their neighbor in making money; and hence the real estate mortgage became a "sinking" fund, for it kept sinking all the time, while the charter contemplated it to be kept up to its full amount, and the proceeds went into other channels, for reasons then at work in commercial dealings generally, which will hereafter be stated. The call loan account into which they went was an avenue to borrowers little known to the public, and we cannot express ourselves strong enough against the pernicious influence granted by it.

E., spoke Br. ship Solway, from Calcutta for London. Dec. 9, lat 25 deg. 13 min. S., long. 59 deg. 8 min. E., spoke Br. ship Gloriosa, 45 ds. from Bombay for London; was in co. 20 ds., and parted co. Dec. 29 off Algoa Bay. Dec. 19, lat. 31 deg. 1 min. S., long. 31 deg. 15 min. E., exchanged signals with Br. ship Chieftain, 65 ds. from Canton for London. Same day, lat. 31 01 S., lon. 38 15 E., exchanged signals with an Am. ship steering N., painted black, and showing a white swallow-tail signal with red borders, and name (double) in it. Feb. 24, lat. 32 55, lon. 71 56, passed a double-topsail Am. ship, with painted ports, steering S. March 3, lat. 37 04 N., lon. 72 10 W., saw a ship steering N. W., showing Boston Nos. 3 1 1 5, supposed to be the Peruvian. Same day, lat. 37 35, lon. 72 41, saw bark Ella, of Boston, stg. S. On the outward passage, June 17, 1857, at 8 A. M., while beating down the China Sea, against the S. W. monsoon, came into light green water; wind W. S. W., ship heading South, hove to and sounded 18 fathoms, coarse brown sand and pieces of red broken coral; next cast got 30 fathoms—then no bottom, the current setting E. N. E., two knots per hour, we were soon off the bank. Capt. W. supposes it to be of small extent, as the ship had so soon gone off it; she having gone only two miles South; took sights fm. Chio's while on the bank, which were proved correct a few days previously. Cape Varela and Cape Padaron (Coast Cochin China,) also, afterwards by angles of Pulo, Timoan, Pi-sang and Aor, which places the bank in lat. 8.15 N., long. 109 04 E. There were no such banks laid down on Capt. Williams' Chart, which he believes to be the latest. On a Chart published by R. H. Laurie, 1847, there is a bank discovered in 1846, called Laurie's Bank, of 8 fathoms, laid down in lat 8 00 N., long. 108 16 E. On an old chart of 1800, published by Laurie & Whittle, there is a sand-bank laid down in 7.00 N., long. 108.02 E., expunged from modern charts. With the sun out bright, the bank can be easily seen, the contrast being so striking between the light green water of the bank and the surrounding deep blue of the ocean.

W.; barometer standing at 30.18 until sunset, when the weather threatened, and wind backed to S. W., barometer falling rapidly. At dark saw the land bearing S. W. 10 P. M. Nansete Lights bore W. by N. ½ N., and Highland Light N. W. ½ W., barometer 29 70 and falling; weather very thick and appearances of a storm. Midnight; wind S. S. E. to E. and faint; very baffling; hauled to by the wind N. E. to get an offing, and 2 A. M. Cape Cod Lights bore S. W. ½ W. 15 miles; thick and rainy. 3 A. M. wind strong from E.; reefed sails; at noon hove to in a hard E. by S. gale. 8th, blowing heavy from E. by S. with a heavy sea; thick and rainy. 6 P. M. a severe gale from E. N. E., very heavy sea, rain and sleet, very cold, crew exhausted; six of the most able men sick below; ship icing up very fast, laboring and straining heavily, kept the lead constantly going. 10 P. M., heavy snow squalls from N. E., water gradually shoaling, a mountainous sea running, got the anchors in the shoes and axes ready for an emergency, expecting every moment to see breakers in 17 fathoms. 11 P. M., saw Egg Rock Light close on board; with the greatest difficulty wore ship; in wearing got a glimpse of a light, supposed Boston Light; sounded and found 19 fathoms; soon after saw Cohasset Lights S. W., and Scituate Light S.; set three reefed topsails and reefed foresail; wind hauling N. N. E., ship heading E., going bows under, and drifting with the heavy sea fast on the South shore; shook reef out of foresail; 5 A. M., snow, saw a light bearing S., supposed it Race Point light; 9th, 7 A. M., snow lifted, saw land close to; breakers close on board, shook out reefs, set whole mainsail, when wind veered to the N.; snow cleared, and saw the highlands of Cape Cod lights bearing S. by E. ½ E., and land S. W. by S., the ship close into the breakers, and the undertow appearing to take hold of the ship, she pitching bowsprit under, and the sea breaking entirely over her; kept off E. S. E., hard full to clear shore, when at 10 P. M., were clear of the land; showed numbers to lighthouse keeper; the gale from the N. drove us out of the South Channel; the best part of the crew and mate sick; out of wood and provisions, with fore and maintopsail yards sprung—bore away for Newport; northerly winds prevented her reaching there; kept on for New-York; got within 40 miles of Sandy Hook on the night of the 11th, when a thick S E wind, with rain, came on, lasting till next morning; hauled off shore. The light on Egg Rock, seen 11 P. M. on the 8th, was the means of saving the ship from being dashed to pieces on Nahant.

BALTIMORE, March 9.—I wrote you on the 4th inst., relative to the schr. Elizabeth Bussel. On the night of the 4th inst. the wind blew very fresh from the south, causing a heavy sea, carrying away the rudder, and parted the chain, the anchor being out. The next day, the tide ebbed and flowed in her. Her bottom is damaged; otherwise, the vessel has sustained no damage. She will be hauled on the beach and made tight.—(By letter to Ellwood Walter, Esq., Secretary Board of Underwriters.)

SHIP NATHAN HANAN.—A special dispatch received in the City this morning, dated New-Orleans March 13, reports the ship Nathan Hanan arrived below on the 12th inst. A previous dispatch from Charleston reported her lost on Cape Florida, March 2.

The large Br. steam frigate, supposed to be Curacoa, from Plymouth, Eng., reported in yesterday morning's edition as below, was not in sight last night at sunset, and is probably an error. The author of the report was Capt. Skinner, of the steamship Roanoke, arrived on Sunday night, who passed a steamer the same night off the Highlands, firing rockets, and supposed it to be the Curacoa.

KEY WEST, March 6.—The ship Nathan Hanan, from Boston for New-Orleans, ran ashore on the night of the 3d inst. near Cape Florida, and soon bilged. News reached here this morning that a Spanish brig is ashore on the Quick Sands, and four wreckers have gone to her assistance. The brig Palestine, Capt. Rogers, with a cargo of guano for Baltimore, came in on the 3d inst. for water and provisions, and sailed again yesterday. The schr. Mystic Valley sailed this morning for New-York, and the bark Syra is loading—both vessels with cotton from bark Mimi.—(By letter to Ellwood Walter, Esq., Secretary Board of Underwriters.)

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Capt. Maguire, of the schr. B. Watson, from Rio de Janeiro for New-Orleans, was accidentally killed on the voyage. The particulars of the accident are as follows: On the 10th ult., when the Watson was off Granada Island, in running before the wind the main-boom pennant hook strained out; the boom swung over, striking Capt Maguire on the head and killing him instantly. The first officer took charge of the vessel and put into St. George's Bay, Granada Island, where he had the body of the captain embalmed, and he proceeded on his voyage to New-Orleans.—N. O. Picayune.

The steamer Hermann was sold at auction on Saturday, 5th ult., for $40,000. She was bought by Geo. S. Wright, and it is rumored that they will take her to Chili to sell her to the Chilian Government for a man-of-war steamer.
